Talmadge Plans To Collect Taxes By Martial Law

Governor Tells Lake Winnesaukah Audience He Will Not Call Special Session To Enact Appropriation Measure.

FIRST STATEMENT ON FUND SITUATION

Statutes Give Authority To Assume Full Control of State Money in 'Emergency,' He Believes.

Governor Talmadge said yesterday in a speech at Lake Winnesaukah he would not call a special session of the general assembly to pass a 1936-1937 general appropriation act and it was learned here he plans to place the state under martial law January 1, collect taxes through Adjutant-General Lindley W. Camp and disburse the funds collected as he sees fit.

It has been known for some time the Governor had found statutes which he considered gave him the authority to assume control of the situation in an "emergency."

It has also been learned the Governor is anticipating court action to test his authority to call out the troops, and he is planning in his martial law proclamation to declare the general assembly, particularly the house, failed to do its duty by not passing an appropriation bill agreeable to the senate. He also is expected to attempt to prove the house did not give necessary attention to the appropriation bill the last night of the regular session. He indicated his plans in his speech yesterday when he said the house spent its time on the last night of the session nominating its officials for various state offices.

The governor as director of the budget sent an appropriation bill to the house at the outset of the regular session. It provided for funds for the various departments and carried the "grandfather" clause which permits the Governor to slash appropriations if he does not think the revenue will be enough to meet them. The house would not permit this clause to affect the funds for the common schools and also hiked the school fund somewhat. The senate substituted the Talmadge bill and there never was an agreement reached.

Legislative leaders have been of the opinion the Governor would have to call a special session. Close observers of the situation became aware of his plans by his speech yesterday was his first public pronouncement since the session.

FRAUDS CHARGED AGAINST LONGINO BY EDWIN JOHNSON

Leader of County Board Majority Accuses Opposing Board Member of Indictable Offenses.

Sensational charges against Commissioner George F. Longino, involving indictable offenses, have been laid before the grand jury by Commissioner Edwin F. Johnson, it was learned exclusively yesterday by The Constitution.

Assertions that Longino, leader of the minority faction of the county board of roads and revenues, has personally profited from county insurance business and through lending county employees money on advance salaries, were understood to have been made by Johnson, who is the leader of the majority bloc of the commission.

"Nothing more than a smoke screen," was Commissioner Longino's comment last night. He promised a full answer later.

"All thinking people will appreciate that these charges, personal in nature, notwithstanding that my charges have related only to the business of the public, as conducted by the Board of County Commissioners, are nothing more than a smoke screen designed

World Series Week Bad Time for War

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 3.—If they craved to get on the front page, the Italians make a grave mistake by starting a war when there's a World Series on—especially one where you find two opposing star pitchers from the same section of the same great state. What a scandal! It was it said the chief products of Arkansas were democrats and champion hog-callers.

And why shouldn't that Warneke boy be able to throw straight and move fast? Where he comes from, the youngsters run down a buck rabbit or slips out before breakfast with a pocketful of rocks and comes home with a mess of squirrels. If they'd only let him take off his shoes in the next game, he could more around that infield even faster.

Also, it "comes natchell," as they say in his country and mine, to nurse one quid in the right cheek all afternoon. I was 16 years old before I knew there was any other salad course except chewing tobacco or that oysters didn't grow in a can.

Well, Friday Detroit may be leading in something besides automobiles.

4,329 MORE SIGN SAFETY PLEDGES

Total Reaches 19,739;
Georgia Power Company Backs Campaign.

The war between safe driving and the death of the highway was hotly in Atlanta yesterday, as 4,329 new signers of The Constitution's "Safe Driving" pledge were recorded, while news reports carried the stories of two motorists who met death during the day. If police reports are correct, both of these lives would have been saved had the drivers been living up to the seven simple rules that are embodied in the pledge the "Safe Drivers" sign and which is published in other columns of this issue of The Constitution.

Individual drivers and large groups alike joined the "Safe Driving" campaign yesterday.

The largest single group was the entire employee personnel of the Georgia Power Company, including drivers of personally owned cars as well as company vehicles. This group totaled 4,000 recruits for the safety campaign alone.

Other Group Pledges.

Other group pledges were received from the Jacobs Pharmacy Company and the Western Union, the former reporting 50 signed pledges and the latter 125.

This makes a grand total, to date, of 19,739 Georgians who have signed the "Safe Driving" pledge since the Safety Council of The Constitution initiated this campaign a little more than a week ago.

The power company, through J. Ernest Stott, safety director, stated that, although it carries on a continuous program to encourage operation of its automotive equipment at all times, it feels that "participation in this movement by The Constitution, and the signing of the pledge by our drivers, will create increased interest and an added sense of responsibility for all of us. Every employee of this company who drives company equipment or personal cars will be asked to sign The Constitution Safety Council's safe driving pledge."

Delegates Are Named.

Governor Talmadge has appointed Adjutant-General Lindley W. Camp, John Heck of the state highway board, State Senator W. M. Lester, of Augusta, and Representative Wesley Culpepper, of Fayetteville, to represent Georgia at the 24th annual Safety Conference to be held in Louisville, Ky., October 14 to 16.

The East Georgia Motor Club of Augusta, through its general chairman, W. F. Shipman, at the same time announced that a street and

The War Situation at a Glance

By the Associated Press.

The Italian high command in East Africa last night ordered troops across the Mareb river into East Africa as a measure of "defense" and declared both Eritrea and Italian Somaliland to be under full martial law. The Italian air fleet struck out in a surprise offensive at dawn yesterday and bombed the Ethiopian town of Aduwa as the long-awaited hostilities between the two countries got under way.

In a proclamation issued at Asmara, General Emilio de Bono, commander of the Italian colonial troops, called on the tribes along the Ethiopian-Eritrean border to invoke the aid of God for an early victorious end to "the war which we make for the triumph of justice."

Ethiopia claimed a claim denied in Rome—that bombs were dropped upon Red Cross hospitals, killing civilians, including women and children, in violation of rules of warfare. Italy admitted her troops advanced, but denied there was fighting.

After calling a general mobilization, Emperor Haile Selassie temporarily withheld passports from the Italian minister to Addis Ababa. Geneva considers the two nations at war and officials of the League were worried lest it spread. Italy has made known she would not formally declare war, since she considers her program "a colonial expedition."

Fighting was reported under way near Aduwa, with conflicting reports from the scene of operations.

In a protest to the League of Nations, Haile Selassie said 78 bombs were dropped upon Aduwa, where Ethiopia administered a crushing defeat to Italy 39 years ago. He said 15 houses were destroyed there and 100 at Abigara.

Italian infantry was said to be retreating near Aduwa under the cover of airplanes (British) News Agency correspondent.

The Exchange Telegraph Agency reported in London 1,700 persons were killed and wounded in the bombardment of Aduwa, but it was said in Addis Ababa the number of fatalities was not known.

Swift action by the League and big powers appeared in prospect. Great Britain and France agreed at a Paris conference, French officials said, to place a program before the League of Nations calling for immediate severance by members of financial and economic relations with Italy. Financial aid may be proffered Ethiopia.

The League council was summoned into urgent session at Geneva Saturday.

Great Britain, London dispatches said, is prepared to go the limit under the League covenant to restrain Italy.

The state department in Washington cautiously awaited official reports before commenting. Observers pointed to President Roosevelt's declaration for peace Wednesday.

The German government adopted President Roosevelt's attitude. Financial markets of the world were nervous.

NAVY FIELD, DETROIT, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Thomas David Bridges, the Tennessee thunderbolt with the crackling curve, came to the rescue of the Detroit Tigers today and buried them right back into the middle of the cold-weather battle waged for baseball's world championship in 10 years.

The sixth pitching of the slim speed-ball artist, combined with a blast of semi-freezing weather and a first-inning barrage of base hits, halted the impetuous charge of the Chicago Cubs. The final score was 8 to 3 as the home team's "G-men" opened fire for the first time with their bats and drove the veteran Charley Root to cover with a four-run fusillade climaxed by Hank Greenberg's first homer of the series.

The Tiger triumph squared matters at one game apiece, with the warfare shifting from this frigid battleground to Chicago tomorrow for the next three games. The enthusiasm of the American league champions, along with 46,742 half-frozen cash customers, was cut somewhat short by an in-

130 Chinese Are Killed When Pirates Fire Ship

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A Reuters (British) news agency dispatch from Canton reported today that at least 130 Chinese, including a troupe of 25 actresses, perished in a fire aboard the motorship Samsen near Tung-kwan, after the ship was attacked by pirates.

The dispatch said the pirates fired the ship after taking the vessel with machine gun and rifle fire from the shore of the Canton river.

Many thousands of Atlanta's 53,255 school children are expected at the Southeastern Fair today. Free from school work until Monday, throngs from the city schools, joined by many more from county schools and others in this vicinity, are expected to bring the total number who enter the gateway up to Sunday's record crowd of 87,000, officials said.

Georgia farmers turned to the fairgrounds yesterday in steadily increasing numbers for the judging of livestock. Grand champion for Guernsey bulls was awarded Fulton county, which also won second place. J. W. Hicks Jr., of Cobb county, won first prize for his bull in the 18-month-old class.

In the 4-H Club calf competition, dairy section, R. C. Williams, of Douglasville, won the championship for calves under two years old. The championship for calves over three years old was won by Henry Odum Jr., of Covington, who also won grand champion. T. H. Breedlove Jr., of Monroe, was awarded a medal for being the best showman.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 3.—(UP)—Italy's motorized legions, advancing on the north, east and south with mechanical precision, rolled back the crumbling edge of Ethiopia's outpost defenses tonight after bombing planes had struck terror and death to two frontier towns, Aduwa and Adigara.

Aduwa, where the Ethiopians slaughtered 8,000 Italians 39 years ago, was bombarded mercilessly. Unconfirmed reports said as many as 1,700—one-third of the population—were killed.

Emperor Haile Selassie complained to the League of Nations that the Red Cross hospital had been bombed.

State of War Is Declared In Somaliland and Eritrea.

Both Eritrea and Somaliland were declared "in a state of war" today.

The Italian high commissioner, General De Bono, issued a formal proclamation to the people of the two Italian colonies declaring that "war exists."

The proclamation was read from the balcony of the governor's palace by General Rodolfo Graziani, governor of Italian Somaliland. The proclamation said those "spreading false news or perturbing public order will be mercilessly punished."

General De Bono issued a proclamation to tribesmen of Eritrea that Italian troops will pass over the Mareb river through the Mellasse valley "for defense of tribesmen" against Ethiopia.

"His proclamation was issued simultaneously with one at Mogadishu which declared both Eritrea and Italian Somaliland to be under full martial law.

"So that your land shall not be damaged by war, and so that we may furnish aid to many of the Tigrai (the northwestern province of Ethiopia) and those of other regions who have asked our intervention, I have ordered our troops to pass Mareb."

Men, Women and Children Perish in Hail of Steel.

Men, women and children, helpless non-combatants, were said to have perished in the rain of steel from the sky. Foreign diplomats here privately expressed horror at the "unbelievable brutality" of the air attack.

The government took all possible measures for protection of Addis Ababa. Officials prepared to flee to caverns deep in the bowels of the mountain towering over the city at the first warning of planes in the sky.

Antiaircraft batteries were posted in concealed emplacements. Two machine guns, with muzzles pointed skyward, stood in the shadow of the gilded statue of Menelik, the revered monarch who defeated the Italians in 1896.

Emperor Haile Selassie threw open the doors of every prison in Ethiopia and ordered the prisoners to fight for their own and Ethiopia's freedom.

Two antiaircraft guns were set up at the railroad station. Many foreigners took to the hills tonight, fearing a night bombardment of the

WALLACE EXPLAINS
POTATO ACT STAND*Secretary Tells Farmers Control of 'Spud' Crop Up to Growers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Stepping into a torrid hearing, called to discuss the controversial potato control law, Secretary Wallace today answered shouts of "nullification" with a proposal for a referendum to see whether a control program is desired.

Five hundred farmers, gathered in the agriculture department auditorium, heard sharp rebukes tossed at those in charge. Roars of protest were thrown against Wallace's statement yesterday that he intended to "avoid" enforcing the potato law. Many farmers loudly demanded that the tax-control program for "spuds" be carried out. Wallace stepped suddenly and unexpectedly into the auditorium, saying he desired to explain his bombshell remarks of yesterday. Greeted coolly by the audience as he entered, he left amid an almost complete silence.

Under attack repeatedly during the morning, Wallace told the farmers at the afternoon sessions that "my own personal attitude has nothing whatever to do with enforcement of an act of congress."

Budget officials, he said, now are considering a request for funds for enforcement of the law. The compulsory potato control, he said, could be made to work if the vast majority of growers wanted it, but he couldn't visualize how bootlegging could be stopped.

The small jewelry store was entered about 8:20 a. m. as William Roscher, store manager, was placing trays in the show window preparatory to opening for the day. Roscher and a window washer, Henry Peterson, were held at bay at the point of a pistol. Their hands were tied behind them with wire from a picture frame.

After taking one tray of diamonds and overlooking several others containing gems valued at thousands of dollars, the two bandits walked calmly out of the store and mingled with crowds en route to work.

Returning for the first time since she was released on bail in February, Mrs. Frances A. Robinson, 24-year-old wife of Thomas H. Robinson Jr., alleged kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, said today she had received no word from her husband and "might be a widow."

Arriving here from her home in Nashville today to stand trial Monday with her father-in-law, Thomas H. Robinson Sr., on charges of complicity in the kidnapping, Mrs. Robinson chatted with reporters at the office of her attorney, Clem W. Huggins.

Mitchell said this demand was not successful, but that some planters were paying as low as 35 cents when the strike was called, and now "a fairly uniform price has been obtained on nearly every plantation, with the lowest price being offered 60 cents per hundred pounds and a high of 70 cents."

BLOWS OVER NEW YORK

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Wind that reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour whipped through western New York today on the heels of rain, snow and hail, causing heavy damage. It blew a freighter from its moorings in Buffalo harbor and interfered with utility service. Striking Buffalo from the southwest, the wind tore the freighter, Charles Donnelly, and sent it careening 1,200 feet across the river against a pulpwood barge. Streets were strewn with branches and a parked automobile was blown on a sidewalk by the force of the wind. Power lines were broken in several sections but utility companies said no interruption in service was likely.

JURYMEN SEEK TRACE OF CONFISCATED GUNS

Committee Questions Scharf, Others Over 'Disappearance' of Weapons.

Indication that the grand jury is probing the disposal of guns and pistols confiscated by city patrolmen came yesterday as the special police investigation grand jury committee questioned half a dozen witnesses.

Among those who testified before the group headed by Chairman J. G. Barrow were Chief of Police W. O. Sturdivant and his former secretary, Oscar H. Pendley, who was recently demoted by the chief.

It was understood that Patrolman M. O. Evans and Captain John Scharf, custodian of confiscated articles, were closely questioned by Barrow and his committee concerning whisky and guns stored in the city police station.

Councilman Aubrey Milam, long a prominent figure in city political life, probably will appear before the full grand jury this morning, it was reported.

What Milam will inform the jurymen was not known.

Dodd's Name Injected.

The name of Oren Dodd, Atlanta wholesale beer dealer, who was recently acquitted of the murder of Peter Heath Jr., a negro, again was injected into the grand jury investigation, it was understood, and it was believed that both Pendley and Sturdivant were asked pertinent questions by the jurors in regard to Dodd.

Witnesses at an earlier session of the Barrow committee were understood to have been asked if they had been offered bribes not to testify against Dodd in his murder trial. He was charged with slaying Heath in a gangland war during which several shots were fired at Walter Jones, beer dealer who last week told the jurors he was in the "bottle" business.

Scharf, Evans Questioned.

Captain Scharf and Patrolman Evans, who until recently was station lieutenant's assistant, were believed to have been questioned about the location of the arsenal and whether or not guns and pistols and whisky "disappeared" after such had been confiscated and stored in the stationhouse.

C. R. Williams, operator of an Edgewood avenue candy kitchen, who said he was the owner of a place on Mitchell street in 1922 when a detective took a pistol from him during a raid, was another witness yesterday.

It was understood that the jurors asked Williams about the missing pistol, which was found in the possession of a detective who said he had merely neglected to turn it in to the proper authorities.

Earlier in the investigation E. O. Stegall, a former policeman, was said to have brought this subject up and made charges against a detective he named along with other officers.

PREACHERS PROTEST SUNDAY FAIR OPENING

Protest by local clergymen against the Southeastern Fair and Cotton States Exposition opening and closing on Sunday came yesterday with resolutions adopted by the Atlanta Methodist Ministers' Association. The resolutions read:

"Be it resolved that we, the Atlanta Methodist Ministers' meeting, do hereby go on record as protesting the formal opening and closing of the fair upon Sunday. This we do because the opening of places of amusements at the fair grounds or anywhere else on the Sabbath. That we affirm our support of all constructive educational forces, but that it is our conviction that any vitiating of the Sabbath influence is a vitiating of fundamental spiritual forces and therefore tends to undermine the happiness and perpetuity of any people."

Pointing out that there are "educational values" and "innocent amusements" at the fair, the preachers said they felt that "midway and race tracks are diametrically opposed to the spirit of reverence and worship."

SENTELL CONFESSES THEFT OF AUTOMOBILE

Benjamin Franklin Sentell, 28-year-old son of the Rev. W. M. Sentell, former pastor of the College Park Baptist church, was held yesterday under $1,000 bond for the grand jury on charges of stealing an automobile and driving it from Atlanta to Birmingham. Sentell signed a confession before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith, saying he drove the car out of Atlanta while drinking and abandoned it in a Birmingham suburb. He returned to Atlanta and surrendered.

The Sentell family bobbed into the limelight some time ago when the father disappeared and was lost for several days while the family feared foul play. He was discovered later and is reported to be working in Savannah now.

BISHOP GAILOR DEATH REGRETTED BY MIKELL

Bishop H. J. Mikell, of Atlanta, president of the Province of Sevens, Episcopal church, yesterday characterized the death of Bishop Thomas Frank Gailor as "a great loss, not only to the church whose most distinguished leader he was, but to the religious life of the country."

Praising the life and leadership of the churchman and educator, Bishop Mikell said:

"For a generation he has been fearlessly foremost for every cause which he thought right and just, and when he blew the trumpet of leadership it never gave an uncertain sound."

DEKALB GANG ESCAPE CAPTURED IN ATLANTA

An escaped negro convict from the DeKalb county chain gang was in the camp hospital yesterday with bullet wounds in the foot after being pursued and captured in Atlanta by J. T. Dailey, chief of the DeKalb county police.

Told that the negro, LeRoy Harris, could be found on Fair street, Chief Dailey went to the address given him. Harris fled, Dailey firing six times in six blocks before bringing him down. The negro escaped once before and was serving a five-to-seven-year sentence on charges of assault of a guard and robbery of a truck in the escape.

URGE MOSAIC LAW Judge Asked to Confine Accused to Attic.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Neighbors urged treatment in kind today for William Van Cleve and his sister, Catherine, charged with keeping Van Cleve's wife, Anna, a prisoner for three months in the attic of their home.

"Put them under a tin roof on a hot day," one witness said after Judge Charles L. Brown asked at a hearing: "What do you think should be done to these two?"

"Let her eat out of a paper bag," another witness cried. "Do the same as they did to her."

Mrs. Van Cleve testified doors were always kept locked to keep her a prisoner.

Miss Van Cleve denied she kept her sister-in-law a prisoner and said "I cooked each of her meals for her. I did not keep her locked in." Van Cleve did not testify.

Judge Brown continued the hearing.

HOME TESTED RECIPES
Sally Saver

What is so rare as an appetite in the fall? Youngsters burn up energy by the plate-load at rope skipping and other fall games, and are clamoring at mother's heels, early and late, for more food.

Dad, too, seems always to gain new pep from a brisk atmosphere. His appetite, too, is whetted to almost unbelievable keenness by the cool weather.

What one should serve to a voracious mob like that frequently leaves the housewife in a veritable state of jitter. With all of the tasks that demand attention, minutes slip by like leaves in a 40-mile gale, and supper or luncheon time is on one before you know it.

Dishes that one has become accustomed to serving during the hot summer months somehow do not always seem quite appropriate for cool fall days.

Here are a few luncheon recipes that grownups and kiddies alike will greet with enthusiasm:

Five-Story Pancake.
Five large pancakes; butter; 1-4 pound cooked pork sausage meat; 3 tablespoons maple cream; 3 tablespoons chopped cooked bacon; 3 tablespoons apple jelly. Spread each cake with butter. Cover first pancake with sausage (made into patties the size of pancakes). Cover with second pancake. Spread with maple cream. Cover third pancake with bacon—fourth with apple jelly. When serving cut in pie shaped pieces. Serve very hot. (Serves 6).

Veal Loaf Patty Cakes.
Four cups seasoned mashed potatoes; 3 slices veal loaf (1-4 inch); 6 tablespoons catsup; 4 tablespoons butter. Cut veal loaf in two, lengthwise. Spread with catsup. Pat potatoes into flat, oblong cakes. Put together sandwich fashion with veal loaf in center. Press edges together. Fry in butter to a golden brown. (Serves 6).

Fruit-Stuffed Pork Chops.
Six double thick rib chops; 1 cup crushed pineapple; 2 tart apples; 1-4 cup bread crumbs.

Mix drained pineapple, chopped raw apple and bread crumbs for stuffing. Cut a pocket on the inside of each chop, stuff generously and place on a wire rack in a baking pan. Bake at 300 degrees Fahrenheit for 1 to 1 1/2 hours, basting occasionally with the juice from the pineapple. For a high glaze, mix a little brown sugar in the pineapple juice.

Baked Tomatoes Stuffed With Creamed Fish Flakes.
Four tomatoes; 1 cup fish flakes (cooked fish); 1-8 teaspoon pepper; 1-8 teaspoon salt; 1-3 cup cream or top milk; 1 tablespoon chopped parsley; 1 tablespoon onion grated; 2 1/2 tablespoons butter cooking oil.

Scoop out the tomatoes with creamed fish flakes, made as follows: Put butter or oil to heat in a frying pan over a slow fire, in a bowl combine the other ingredients with cream, adding the fish flakes last. Put them in the butter or oil and let it all simmer slowly until thoroughly heated and until thoroughly blended with the seasonings.

Place the tomatoes filled with the fish flakes in a buttered pan and bake in the oven (370 degrees Fahrenheit), until tomatoes are crinkly and well cooked.

If cream is not available the fish flakes can be mixed and heated with a white sauce and then put into the tomatoes. The white sauce may be seasoned to taste with parsley, paprika, pepper and salt.

Salmon Casserole* Scalloped Potatoes
Buttered Green Beans
Sweet Onions

Rolls
Drop Dish Cherry Pie
Salmon Casserole.

One 1-pound can salmon, flaked; 1-2 cupful grated American cheese; 1-4 cupful rice flakes, crushed; 2 hard cooked eggs, sliced; 1-2 cupful cream of tomato soup; 1 teaspoonful pure vinegar.

Butter 4 tablespoonsful of the crushed rice flakes. Mix remaining ingredients together and put in buttered casserole. Top with buttered rice flakes and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until heated through and brown on top.

Creamed Oysters and Mushrooms*
Baked or Mashed Sweet Potatoes
Rolls
Pineapple Sherbet or Canned Fruit

Creamery Oysters and Mushrooms.
Six tablespoonsful butter; 6 tablespoonsful flour; 1 teaspoonful paprika; 2 medium cans cream of mushroom soup; 24 oysters (1 pint); 4 shelled hard cooked eggs, sliced.

Melt butter in the top of a double boiler, add the flour and paprika and blend well. Add soup and stir until smooth and thick. Cook the oysters in their own liquor until the edges curl, then add with the hard cooked eggs to the soup mixture. Heat well and serve in patty shells or on toast.

Fruit Cookies.
One-half cupful butter; 1 cupful sugar; 2 eggs; one 1-pound tin or jar mince meat; 2 1/2 cupfuls sifted all-purpose flour; 4 teaspoonfuls baking powder; 1-2 teaspoonful salt.

Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together. Add eggs, and beat until fluffy after the addition of each. Add mince meat. Fold in flour, baking powder and salt which have been sifted together. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased cookie sheet and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for 15 minutes. This makes five dozen cookies.

28,249 Georgians Have Benefited By Service in CCC, Figures Reveal

Mental and physical training for 24,756 Georgia youths has been supplied in Georgia's 63 CCC camps since the corps was organized in April, 1933, according to figures announced yesterday by Miss Gay B. Shepperson, of the FERA.

This figure constitutes the total number of junior enrollees only, their age limit being from 18 to 25. In addition to these there have been 1,823 veteran enrollees and 1,670 local experience men, the latter enrolled because of their knowledge of the country in the vicinity of the local camps, its soil conditions and forest paths.

These figures were given as the announcement came from Major E. O. Sandlin, officer in charge of CCC work in the fourth corps area, that Georgia's quota of CCC workers is being reduced from 14,660 to 12,700 for the period from October 1 through December 31.

The cut has been ordered throughout the entire corps area and means, according to Major Sandlin, that 61 of the 467 companies or camps in the area will be discontinued within the next 30 days. Those which must go will be designated by Robert Fechner, national CCC director, probably within the next week. The fourth corps area is the heaviest loser of men actually enrolled in all areas of the country because it was the first to fill its quota under the expansion ordered July 1.

Directions for Making Aunt Jemima Buckwheat Waffles

1. Mix milk or water with equal amounts of Aunt Jemima Buckwheat according to package recipe.
2. Have waffle iron just hot enough. To test, put a drop of water on iron. If it goes right up in a puff of steam, iron is too hot. If it bounces around a second before evaporating, iron is hot enough.
3. Grease iron very lightly. Don't pour grease on. Spread it thinly with pad or brush.
4. Pour batter into iron. Bake until a golden brown.

One order to your grocer brings everything for this marvelous low-cost meal. Complete with printed easy directions. Wonderfully quick to make with the special buckwheat blend that guarantees far more fluffiness.

They talked a lot about Aunt Jemima's waffles on the old plantations. And today Aunt Jemima's are the waffles food lovers rave about. It's easy for you to get them light and well-done because Aunt Jemima's special blend guarantees far more fluffiness than ordinary bread or biscuit flour. For Aunt Jemima's contains only about half the amount of gluten of ordinary flour. And gluten is the taffy-like substance in flour that resists heat and slows up the baking process. That's why, with about half the gluten of ordinary flour, Aunt Jemima's comes out so perfectly done, so tender, fluffy and light in the few short minutes waffles are on the fire.

And note this, ladies. An Aunt Jemima waffle, a square of butter and 1 1/2 ounces of syrup are only 382 calories. Yet standard diets permit a total of 2,000 to 4,000 calories in the three daily meals.

Your grocer will deliver any of the ingredients you need for the Aunt Jemima menu above. Order now.

Major Trammell Scott Appointed Atlanta Roosevelt Day Chairman

Legion Leader Will Work With Erie Cooke in Making Plans.

Major Trammell Scott, American Legion leader, yesterday was named by Mayor Key as chairman of the Atlanta committee on arrangements for the Roosevelt home-coming celebration and he immediately assumed charge of affairs, working in conjunction with Erie Cooke, who is directing arrangements for the celebration at the request of the Georgia delegation in congress, the President's host on his visit to Atlanta Thanksgiving week.

Major Scott immediately went into conference with Mr. Cooke and is expected to meet again with Mayor Key today to discuss selection of the city-wide committee which will serve under him. He said that he would ask the mayor to appoint W. A. Nims, Charles H. Cox, Police Captain Jack Malcom, Fonville McWhorter and others to serve on the committee with him.

Mail Is Pouring In.

Mr. Cooke said yesterday that mail is pouring in to the Roosevelt home-coming celebration headquarters in the 101 Building and that all indications still point to a record crowd greeting the President on his arrival here for his annual fall vacation at Warm Springs.

"From all over the state we are receiving notice that motorades and special trains will bring the people to Atlanta," he said. "We are going ahead with our plans and when we are finished we will have a program and a celebration which will mark a new era in our state's history."

Chairman E. P. White, of the DeKalb county democratic executive committee, yesterday issued a statement in response to a call by State Chairman Hugh Howell for all officials of democratic organizations to come to Atlanta and participate in the Roosevelt ceremonies.

White's Statement.

Mr. White's statement follows: "Communication has been made public by Hugh Howell, chairman of the so-called state democratic executive committee, calling upon the county democratic committees to co-operate with the committee in charge of the Roosevelt home-coming Thanksgiving week. As chairman of the DeKalb county democratic executive committee and member of that committee for 15 years, I feel it my duty to remind the democrats of DeKalb county and particularly Mr. Howell (who now dwells within our borders) that we, the democratic executive committee of DeKalb county, know our duty as democrats and will upon this occasion as well as in the very recent past do it."

"I am expressing the views of a large delegation of DeKalb county citizens as well as my own when I say we feel we are without democratic leadership so far as the state committee is concerned. We, as democrats, of one of the leading counties in the state, resent vigorously the attempt to set aside the results of the democratic election in our county last year by the governor and his state committee, simply as a matter of reprisal because they could not get control of this county, whose democracy is and always has been a fact of life in the state politics.

"We, as democrats, also resent the attempt of the governor and his state chairman to impugn our democracy and that of the state and nation by their public utterances and calling of names.

"It is to be hoped that this team of reactionaries will not be permitted to use the occasion of our great President's home-coming to further their own questionable political ambitions.

"The congressional delegation, headed by our able senators, should see to it that for once a true picture of Georgia's democracy is flashed before the American people. We democrats of DeKalb county look to the congressional delegation to act as official host to the President upon that day, remembering that those who have been keeping the home fires burning will lend hearty co-operation in making the day a milestone for forward looking democrats.

"E. P. WHITE, Chairman DeKalb Democratic Executive Committee."

NEW DEAL RELIEF FUND NEARLY ALL ALLOTTED

Total of 2,373,766 To Be Put on Pay Rolls in Less Than 30 Days.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Corrington Gill, chief of staff of the New Deal work relief program, disclosed today that virtually all funds have been allotted for the drive designed to provide jobs for 3,500,000 needy and their families after November 1.

He checked over allotments totaling $4,298,500,000, leaving President Roosevelt a "kitty" of $266,500,000 for administrative expenses and a few additional projects intended to take up the job slack here and there.

State works progress directors telegraphed headquarters today that the number given work relief jobs up to October 3 was 1,129,254. This left 2,373,766 to be put on pay rolls in less than a month to fulfill President Roosevelt's goal.

The Civilian Conservation Corps accounted for 559,840 of the total. WPA was credited with 452,739 and other federal agencies the remainder. Excluding the CCC, work relief jobs had jumped 132,376 from September 19.

As Gill spoke, airplanes rushed from the Pacific coast the President's approval of additional WPA projects to furnish employment to those not provided for by other work relief agencies.

WPA, however, already was within a quarter of a billion of the $1,250,000,000 it will spend. State administrators had the power to select from three or four billion in approved projects those meeting a locality's particular needs.

Statistician and former newspaperman, Gill aided in organizing the Public Works Administration and the Federal Housing Administration. He now is assistant WPA administrator.

"The situation is different from the time when we put 4,000,000 to work in 30 days," Gill said, referring to the Civil Works Administration.

"We've paid a great deal more attention to the type of projects we're going to carry through. And through it all we've kept in the foreground that there aren't just any 3,500,000 people we've got to put to work, but specific jobs that must be done. We had to select projects that would absorb just so many carpenters and plumbers, and white collar people besides, in each locality. Obviously we couldn't make it all construction because only 7,615,000 of the 3,500,000 were fitted to do that kind of work."

Gill, who accompanied Hopkins to Hyde Park for the conference last month which resulted in reduced allotments for public works and housing projects, more than a year ago began to prepare for a possible work relief program by studying the occupation skills of the millions on relief.

Wisconsin Senator Is Welcomed to Atlanta

Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, who speaks tonight at the Wesley Memorial church, is shown above as he was welcomed to Atlanta yesterday. The senator is on the left. In the center is Oliver Nix, president of the Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association, under whose auspices Senator La Follette will speak while on the right is Walter Powell, old friend of the senator. Staff photo by George Cornett.

Heavier Income Taxes Necessary, Says Senator La Follette, Here

Although he still considers himself a supporter of President Roosevelt and foresees his re-election next year without much difficulty, Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, yesterday on his arrival here took issue with the President's assertion that the tax measures now in force will provide enough revenue to pay the cost of the New Deal.

"There must be more taxes and they must be income taxes," the son and successor of the late "Fighting Bob" La Follette said. "It takes money to pay the costs of government and the only way to get money is from taxation."

The senator is in Atlanta for an address tonight at the Wesley Memorial church under the auspices of the Atlanta Life Underwriters' Association.

"A study of tax methods will show that the income tax is the most equitable yet established," the senator said. "But our government nets only about 30 per cent from incomes. More than 65 per cent is yielded from indirect and nuisance taxes. People are supposed to be taxed according to their ability to pay and their incomes is the only gauge of their ability to pay."

For Income Tax Increase.
The Wisconsin senator said he believed the income taxes should be increased in both the higher and lower brackets and exemptions should be cut.

Senator La Follette was here last year and on that visit said "President Roosevelt is all right as far as he goes, but he does not go far enough." To most observers the President in the last year has "gone farther" than ever before but the senator left no doubt yesterday he thinks Mr. Roosevelt should go farther.

"Whatever means this country or the world has at its command to put folks to work should be used," he declared. "Work is what provides wealth. Wealth is what the nation needs."

The senator said he is against the schemes now being talked to share the wealth, added that unless new wealth is created the share the wealth programs entail nothing but a sharing of the poverty.

America Clear of War.

The senator showed deep concern over the outbreak of hostilities in Ethiopia but said he believed there was little or no danger of American entry, even though all the nations of Europe should become embroiled in the conflict.

"There is a strong sentiment against war throughout our country and as long as that sentiment is backed by a willingness to sacrifice riches which would come to some if America entered another war America will remain a neutral nation," Senator La Follette said. "What the President has said and what Secretary Hull has said about American neutrality is right down my road."

The senator said he saw nothing in the political situation to prevent the re-election of President Roosevelt.

"The President has gone a long way toward bringing the country back," he asserted. "I think some things he could have done would have helped more but the President disagrees with me."

Mr. La Follette was met at the train by Oliver Nix, president of the life underwriters, and by Henry M. Powell and Hurd J. Crain, past presidents of the association. Mr. Nix will preside over the meeting at which the senator will speak tonight, and Robert L. Cooney, chairman of the association executive committee, will introduce him. The meeting is open to the public.

Senator La Follette went to Millidgeville yesterday afternoon for an address before the students of G. S. C. W. He returned to Atlanta last night.

LAVARRE BELIEVES REDFERN IS ALIVE

Noted Explorer Finds Trace of Missing Georgian in Dutch Guiana.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Oct. 3.—(AP)—New reports of a "crippled white man" living with a tribe of South American Indians have been brought here by William LaVarre, an American explorer, who expressed belief the man is Paul Redfern, Georgia aviator who disappeared eight years ago on a flight to South America.

LaVarre returned to Trinidad yesterday from a trip into the jungles of Dutch Guiana and said he had evidence the plane crashed up in a forced landing when the gasoline ran out. Both of the pilot's legs were broken in the crash, LaVarre claimed. He said he had "forwarded a hat and a strip of fabric from an airplane wing to the State Department in Washington as evidence he had traced Redfern."

The tribe Redfern is living with, the explorer said, has not been in contact with civilization for more than 25 years. LaVarre said he had gathered his clues from Djuker tribesmen in British Guiana.

The explorer said he would return to the United States to form a new expedition to search for the missing flyer.

LUPE GIVEN PUNCH

Movie Actress Hit in Eye in Argentine Theater.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Lupe Velez, the Mexican motion picture actress, was reported in dispatches from Cordoba to have received a punch in the eye yesterday afternoon during a scuffle in a theater. Senator Velez quarreled, according to these dispatches, with the theater manager and an actor, Fernando Ochoa, who is part of Lupe's act in a stage appearance at Cordoba.

Lupe, it was claimed, did not like the theater facilities. The manager was reported to have believed that the actress made a move to draw a revolver from her handbag. A group of persons surrounded her and somebody hit her in the eye. Senator Velez appeared at the night performance as usual.

AMERICAN HEIRESS TO DIVORCE COUNT

Pole Denied $500 Alimony; Accused of Dancing in "Shorts."

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Count Jan Drohojowski, Polish nobleman, told risque stories, danced in his "shorts," and came to lunch in pajamas, witnesses testified today in divorce court.

The testimony was offered in the suit filed against Count Drohojowski by the former Kathryn Cornell, daughter of H. D. Cornell, Texas oil man.

Cornell testified he opposed the marriage, but his wife wanted a title in the family.

The court's petition for temporary alimony of $500 was denied by the court yesterday.

Dorothy Taylor Flint, told about Count Drohojowski showing up for lunch in pajamas. His wife objected, but, the witness testified, "he said that was the way he was going to stay," and he did.

MRS. MUENCH ENTERS PLEA OF NOT GUILTY

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Denial of Nellie Tipton Muench, former St. Louis society matron, she "fingered" a 1931 kidnapping, reached a climax today.

Mrs. Muench sobbed loudly as friends added the weight of their testimony to her defense, staunchly reiterated her story under cross-examination, then paraded from the courtroom on the arm of her husband after the defense unexpectedly closed its case. Mrs. Muench is accused of planning the abduction of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, wealthy and socially prominent St. Louis physician.

Categorically she denied visiting a St. Louis country resort where Adolph Fiedler, the proprietor, said the kidnapping plot was hatched, and in rapid order she denied acquaintance with any of the other accused or convicted defendants in the Kelley case.

Liner Damaged at Sea.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(UP)—The Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Atholl today reported a damaged rudder when she was approximately 830 miles from Donegal, Ireland. Tugs will repair the rudder at sea or take the vessel in tow. She was scheduled to arrive at Liverpool Saturday.

Six hundred musicians, including a chorus of 400 and 200 pianists, will be heard in the municipal auditorium at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the first state-wide concert of the Georgia piano ensemble.

Talks of welcome will be made by Dr. J. Sproule Lyons, pastor of the first Presbyterian church, and by representatives of Mayor Key's office and of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Twenty students from Emory University will sell tickets and be ushers. Tickets may be purchased before the concert at George Mues's main store and at the Cable Piano Company.

"Artistic Atlanta" include Bruce Rickerstaff, Mary Hull, Frances Woolford, Clara McConnell, Dorotha McClatchey, Ann Scott Harmon, Jule McClatchey, Elizabeth Fraser, Sarah Kennan, Genie Snow, Virginia Merry and Margaret Walker.

quality PLUS freshness

THAT'S WHY MORE MOTHERS PREFER MERITA BREAD FOR CHILDREN

Nothing can take the place of quality ingredients in the bread you use. Nothing is so important. That's why Merita searches continually for those things that will make Merita Bread more nutritious, more eagerly relished by the discriminating appetites of children. Every ingredient used in Merita Bread—the flour, shortening, yeast, sugar, even salt, is tested in our own laboratories (the most complete and modern in the South) before it is accepted by us. Of these, only the finest are good enough for Merita. But Merita goes a step further than that. When these fine ingredients are baked slowly, carefully, in moist heat—not dried out—and the golden loaf emerges from the oven, we see that you get that loaf fresh—at the very peak of its fragrant, delectable goodness. In Merita you get quality plus freshness! That is why more mothers in the Southeast select Merita for their children than any other kind.

GAINESVILLE SUSPECT IDENTIFIED AS BAILEY

Greenville, S. C., Officers Say Man Is Long-Hunted Desperado.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Oct. 3.—(P)—A man bearing recently-inflicted buckshot wounds was identified here tonight by a detective and a physician from Greenville, S. C., as Ray Bailey, long-hunted desperado.

Detective C. E. Singleton, of Greenville, took a look at the prisoner, picked up today by Greenville officers, and said he was the man wanted for the killing of a policeman in the South Carolina city in 1932.

The officer was accompanied by D. A. C. Watson, Greenville physician, who identified the man from pistol bullet wounds received in a gun battle with the law after the killing of the policeman three years ago.

Bailey was wounded in that encounter and was treated by the physician, but later got away. The fresh wounds were said by Sheriff B. B. Smith, of Greenville, to have been inflicted when the man shot his way out of a trap in Transylvania county, N. C., about a week ago. Sheriff I. L. Lawson, of Hall county, said he was not decided whether to turn the prisoner over to the South Carolina authorities as other officers were en route here from Asheville, N. C., to view the man.

Bailey, the Greenville killing, the officers said Bailey is wanted for questioning in connection with a number of bank robberies in the Carolinas.

Singleton and Dr. Watson were accompanied here by Chief of Police J. E. Smith, of Greenville; United States Marshal Leuben Gonnell and Deputy United States Marshal E. L. Craig.

The man held in jail was arrested this afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs Homer Lawson and William B. Henderson, of Hall county, Lawson and Henderson were returning from a call three miles north of Gainesville when they met the man walking north on the highway near Holland. They said he lowered his head, pulled his cap down, refused the officers' offer of a ride, and ran when Lawson got out of the car. The deputy outran him.

"The man told me he had been wounded by buckshot but would not say in what city or place the shooting had taken place.

"He said also he had been treated at a Gainesville hospital September 23 for his wounds, but had spent the night in Gainesville, but denied he is Bailey.

"When we asked him where he had been and what he had been doing, he said the questions were too personal, and refused to answer. He was not armed, but had only a safety razor, adhesive tape and gauze, and some poems in his pockets, and $8 in his purse. He is about 30 years old.

ETHIOPIANS PROMISED LANDS THEY CONQUER

Selassie Would Give Eritrea, Somaliland to Cheering Warriors.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 3.—Emperor Haile Selassie promised the "conquered lands" of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland to a crowd of wildly cheering warriors as a reward for Ethiopian victory in the struggle with Italy.

As the Menelik war-drum beat a call to arms, signaling nation-wide mobilization, old men drew swords and staged a previously rehearsed demonstration in the palace yard. The ancient warriors shouted and waved the pathetic rusty cutlasses while destruction rained upon the crown of the cunning modern engines of war of their foes.

The emperor appeared on his balcony only after repeated demands had been shouted for the throngs surging on the terrace below. He retained his habitual poise and retired after concluding a brief address with the pledge "We will fight to the last drop of blood."

The streets of Addis Ababa are tranquil. The inhabitants, remote from the front, have grown weary awaiting the hour of battle. Plenty of manpower on the Italian side has not yet been called to arms. Heavy reinforcements, however, have been rushed to the zone of the Italian advance, to await their turn to use the machine guns and other modern weapons.

A prince of the royal blood said Ethiopia would not permit Italy to win a smashing success, but would confine strategy to awaiting myriad small encounters and attacks on the enemy lines of communications.

LIQUID TABLETS FIRST DAY. TONIC and LAXATIVE. PAINFUL PILES. Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves.

If you think an operation is always the only way to escape the misery of torturing piles, it is because you haven't heard of HEM-ROID, the harmless internal medicine discovered by a western physician.

After years of study Dr. J. S. Leonard was convinced that the cause of Piles was internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins filled with stagnant blood—and that the right and safe way to get freedom from Pile agony was to remove the cause with an internal medicine. Immediately the doctor set to work to find the remedy. He succeeded and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

COMMITTEE APPROVES AUTO-PARKING METERS

Police Body Plans Automatic Policemen Charging Nickel for Street Parking.

Parking in downtown Atlanta will cost automobilists five cents within the next few weeks, under action taken last night by the police committee of city council.

Two thousand parking meters will be set up within the congested area, and will act as automatic policemen. The meters will be placed on stands fronting each parking space, and when a vehicle is driven into the space, the driver must deposit five cents in a slot. If parking is limited to an hour, he will be allowed to remain there for an hour without putting any more money into the meter.

At the end of the hour a signal will be lowered, and traffic cops will thus be able to tell whether a car has remained over time.

If the parking limit is for any other length of time, the meter will be adjusted to meet the requirements. The move of Councilman John A. White and Max M. Cuba to bar reinstatement of any policeman fired for drunkenness got little consideration from the committee, which body voted unanimously to take an adverse report on the ordinance to council's meeting Monday. Councilman George B. Lyle seconded it and the committee concurred without a dissenting vote.

Members of the committee asserted they oppose the re-employment of any man discharged for drinking, but held they should not tie their hands if additional evidence convinced them a mistake had been made.

Harry McWilliams, superintendent, was exonerated of charges of drinking. J. J. Elliott and J. H. Langley, superintendents, were elected patrolmen to fill the vacancies.

Council Monday will be asked to authorize the sale of 150 old Winchester rifles. Chief T. O. Sturdivant told the committee the old guns should be replaced by new and modern equipment.

BRITAIN BUYS ARMS

England Outstrips Italy in Purchases in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(P)—Great Britain was shown by official figures today to have outstripped Italy as a heavy buyer of munitions materials in the United States during the last eight months.

Figures worked out at the commerce department showed, however, that Japan outstripped both of them. Ethiopia's total buying in this country during the last four years of anything that might be regarded as usable for war consisted of $33 trucks.

It took in New York today of an international conference soon of copper producers recalled that both Italy and Great Britain have been heavy buyers of that metal throughout this year.

Even in these purchases, Great Britain has outpaced Italy.

CIRCULATION PLAN URGED BY J. T. TOLER

Atlantan Advises Definite Program Before Newspaper Group at Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 3.—(P)—John T. Toler, circulation manager of The Atlanta Constitution, told southern circulation managers in conference here today that adherence to a definite program would solve many circulation problems.

Speaking on the subject of "Advice to Managers" at the opening session of the convention of the Southern Circulation Managers' Association, Toler said:

"My advice is to seek advice in circulation management from all sources, from all sections, at all times. Keep your ear to the ground for circulation and newspaper problems."

Amplifying his statement on a definite program, Toler said that "without some goal to reach, well planned circulation manager, founders around and gets nowhere."

Co-operation and co-ordination between circulation and other departments of the paper were stressed by the speaker as invaluable.

He discussed newspaper boy and man carrier systems of distribution and said both had their merits, not to be overlooked.

Another speaker on today's program was E. D. Hood, circulation manager of the Savannah Evening Press and Morning News, a former president of the association and chairman of the newspaper boys' welfare in Georgia.

He told the managers that "in the newspaper boy you have the best raw material in the world to work with."

Welcomed by Mayor. Mayor Gamble welcomed the circulation managers to the city prior to the start of the morning business session.

At the invitation of Louis J. Hoffman, of the St. Louis Star-Times, president of the International Circulation Managers' Association, who also addressed the convention, arrangements were made to enter for the first time a team of carrier boy salesmen in a buyer-seller demonstration at the international convention next June in Dallas.

Changes recommended by the by-laws and resolutions committed of which H. E. Johnson, of the Chattanooga Times, is chairman, included the holding of convention during the month of October and the separation of the office of secretary and treasurer, having one officer to hold each office.

Mr. Johnson, the international president, observed that business was much improved, and said that conditions in his section (St. Louis) were better than in any other section of the national last month. He spoke of the progress of President Roosevelt's recovery program, but expressed opposition to features of the child labor law, stating that newspaper carriers should be exceptions not covered by the law, because the light, part-time work provided needed money for boys of younger years.

The election of officers and selection of next year's meeting place will take place at tomorrow's session. A banquet was held for the delegates tonight.

THREE PROBES BEGUN INTO LON EVANS DEATH

Result of Investigations To Be Given Coroner's Jury Today.

Three separate investigations have been launched into the shooting early yesterday of Detective Lieutenant Lon W. Evans, the results of which will be presented to a coroner's jury at 10 o'clock this morning in the undertaking parlors of J. Austin Dillon Company.

Detective Evans died at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the home, 354 Grant Park place, of a bullet wound inflicted in what his wife described as a struggle between them over the officer's revolver.

The three investigations were ordered by Coroner Paul Donehoo, Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant, who planned personally to probe the death of his close friend, and Detective Chief Lamar Pool, who assigned Detectives R. H. Englebert and R. T. Denney, of the homicide squad, to the case.

Patrolmen First on Scene. First news of the shooting reached police at 12 minutes past 1 o'clock. Radio Patrolmen L. A. Puckett and G. M. Cook reached the scene ahead of Captain G. N. Ellis.

According to the combined report of the three officers, they found Lieutenant Evans' body on the floor of a hall leading to the breakfast room, the fatal bullet had entered the left chest, passing upward over the heart and emerging from the right side of the neck, severing the jugular vein.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Green, of 350 Grant Park place, neighbors, and Walt Jones, another neighbor, had been summoned by Mrs. Evans, the officers reported. Green had found the officer's weapon on the table where Mrs. Evans said she placed it, the report stated, and had placed it in the box.

Widow Tells of Shooting. Mrs. Evans, who was under the care of a physician yesterday, told Captain Ellis that Lieutenant Evans returned home shortly before 1 o'clock from his duties at the Southeastern Fair.

He came in the back door as usual, she said, bringing the dog with him. When he found the door to Mrs. Evans' room locked, she said, he threatened to kick it down.

"I told him to ahead, then opened the door to stop him. He was standing there in the hallway with his coat over one arm and his revolver in his right hand.

"You have reported me to the chief for going out with another woman," she said. "You are wrong. I have not been going out with that woman, and I am going to fix all of us so I will not be reported."

Lieutenant Evans then pointed the revolver at her, Mrs. Evans said, and when she pushed it aside it discharged. Mrs. Evans exhibited a scratch on her right hand, inflicted during the struggle.

Chief Preparing Charges. Chief Sturdivant corroborated Evans' belief that his wife had reported him. He said he had been preparing charges to be brought before the next meeting of the police committee. Other officers said yesterday they had remonstrated in vain with Evans over his conduct.

The chief scoffed at reports that Evans was carrying a large sum of money which was missing when the body was taken to the mortuary. He said Evans only recently had tried to

JENKINS OFFICER PLACED ON TRIAL

Shortage of $8,000 Charged to Former Tax Collector.

MILLEN, Ga., Oct. 3.—(P)—Charged with a shortage of more than $8,000 in his tax accounts, J. M. Gay, former tax collector of Jenkins county, was on trial in Jenkins superior court today.

The state called 54 taxpayers as witnesses during the day to testify concerning payment of taxes.

Gay denied the state's charge and said at the time of his indictment it was "just an effort to get me out of office."

His attorney said Gay had accounted for every dollar owed the state and county, and that certain items had not been entered at the time of the audit because the tax collector was in the midst of the busy collecting period.

WE MUST BE ON GUARD

In citing the extent to which foreign wars are a "potent danger" to the peace of America, President Roosevelt, speaking with a background of 130 American war vessels in San Diego harbor, emphasizes that "the American people can have but one concern and speak but one sentiment—despite what happens in continents overseas the United States of America shall and must remain, as long ago the father of our country prayed that it might remain, unentangled and free."

The President emphasizes American neutrality and warns the people of the country must be on guard lest we become involved in the present Italy-Ethiopia controversy, in the statement that "we not only desire peace, but we are moved by a stern determination to avoid those perils that will endanger our peace with the world."

Coming on the heels of the war-torn world, the President's statement echoes the universal sentiment of the American people.

In Washington, Secretary Hull and his aids in the State Department are already conferring on steps to assure that this country not become involved in the controversy that now threatens the peace, not only of Italy and Ethiopia, but of all of Europe.

It is none of our affair—and what we must most zealously guard against is the development of conditions or incidents that may tend to involve this country.

Backing the prompt action of Secretary Hull, announcement is made by Commander Ray Murphy, of the American Legion, that the Legion will launch a vigorous nationwide campaign against our becoming involved in another foreign war.

Every other national organization, whatever its nature, should join with the Legion in moving to safeguard the peace of a nation which is as unanimously against war as is the United States.

American sentiment is united in the demand that we remain neutral, whatever may happen in Europe. The President wisely warns that our chief task must be to prevent anything happening to change that sentiment.

"LITTLE TVA" FOR GEORGIA

The increasing support being evidenced in both Georgia and South Carolina of the proposed $17,500,000 flood control, navigation and electric power project on the Savannah river is not surprising in view of the large territory that would be directly benefited and the still larger area in which, indirectly, conditions would be bettered.

The project calls for the erection of a great dam on the river in South Carolina a few miles north of Augusta and the deepening of the channel from Augusta to the ocean. The proposed dam would be 110 feet high and nearly a mile long and through storage of water would insure river transportation between Savannah and Augusta the year around by boats of greater size than are now able to ply between the two cities.

Farming conditions would be improved along the entire length of the river, since the danger of destructive floods would be eliminated, and cheap transportation and power afforded.

Civic leaders from many communities in both Georgia and South Carolina met in Augusta this week with a group of engineers named by President Roosevelt to study the entire project. Report of its practicability will be made direct to the President.

The expense of this project is small in comparison to the large sums that have been expended in similar undertakings in other sections, while the benefits will be comparatively greater and a larger territory affected.

Should the report of the engineers recommend the construction of this "little TVA" in Georgia, the people of both Georgia and South Carolina should get united behind a project that will stabilize conditions throughout a large territory of both states and go far toward revolutionizing rural conditions in areas both directly and indirectly affected.

VAN SWERINGENS WIN AGAIN

The retention by the Van Sweringens brothers of their three-billion dollar railroad empire as a result of the auction of securities held in New York Monday marks another high-water point in the Aladdin's lamp story of the meteoric rise of these dominant figures in the world of American high finance.

The default of a loan of $41,000,000, which has been swelled by unpaid interest to $48,000,000, led to the auction of the securities to protect the loan that had been put up by the Van Sweringens—stocks and bonds in the various railroads, tractions, trucking companies, a mammoth hotel, department store, real estate and coal corporations going into the makeup of the vast financial empire built by the Cleveland brothers.

The securities were bid in for the Van Sweringens for $3,121,000, thus enabling them to write off more than $45,000,000 of indebtedness from their books.

American high finance has seen few more unique, and in some ways mysterious, figures than the two Cleveland brothers who in the late 20's built a mushroom like structure, based chiefly on the acquisition of the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Missouri Pacific, New York, Chicago and St. Louis, Erie, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Pere Marquette and Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroads, representing a combined trackage of 28,000 miles.

Neither of the brothers, one 56 and the other 53, has married and they have had but one vacation in their lives. They avoid excitement, and their entertainment life consists chiefly in an occasional visit to a neighborhood movie. They enjoy their farm and like automobile rides, but their dislike of airplanes is so intense that an invitation to ride with Colonel Lindbergh was once refused by them.

Neither drink or smoke and neither went beyond the eighth grade in grammar school.

In 1929 they estimated their personal wealth at $100,000,000, but what has been salvaged out of the deflation of the depression no one can guess.

They are once more, however, in full control of their financial empire—one which suffered with all other financial groups during the past five years, but which was soundly conceived, even though its foundation proved unable to withstand unshaken the strain of serious economic upset.

Already the Van Sweringens have petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to permit a reduction of the 70 or 80 types of indebtedness outstanding against their railroads to two or three issues of securities, and for permission to proceed with consolidations that will reduce overhead expenses and make possible better and cheaper service.

That the Cleveland financial wards will go on to further triumphs cannot be doubted—but how they will go about it, few will know, for the close-mouthed brothers have few advisers and, it is said, no confidants.

For all its informality, nothing the Roosevelt administration offers has the easy charm of the Hoover free brochure on the love life of frogs.

An A-1 actor who can drive a truck is wanted by a classified advertiser in New York. What are they doing—motorizing "Ben-Hur."

"Nira" proved something of a washout as a name for girl children. On the other hand, Constitution could always be abbreviated to "Connie."

A new French plane is pedaled like a bicycle. Look out for the ocean-hopper who loses his pants guard and has to come down in Ireland.

One hears little of the medicine ball these days. Our impression is that Mr. Hoover now talks his daily constitutional.

The old safety rule for ocean-hoppers is still operative: Shoot for Lithuania, Rome, Bagdad and points east, and you'll make Ireland.

World's Window

Prisoners On Parade.

Harsh has a jail. But there is no body in it except a murderer, who is to be hanged one of these days. All the rest of the condemned men are out on parole, that is to say they walk around about town, or rather shuffle around, with heavy individual chains around wrists and feet. Some had fellows are attached to a tree-trunk where they depend for their food on the charity of passersby. They sit there in their own dirt, starving and thirsty and we far as I could see, without arousing the least grain of sympathy among the citizenry. If the women did not hand them a crust of bread once in a while, or a jug of beer, they'd perish within a night of it.

Punishments on the whole are much softer than under the former emperor Menelik, who specialized in thinking up cruel chastisements. Ten years ago, playing burning alive, crucifixion, or having eyes torn out, were common punishments. For greatest offenses, Menelik had thought out a particularly fiendish fate. He had them dressed in a shirt soaked in beeswax and then set afire.

Museums Of Horror.

The curious part is that the Abyssinian church preserves paintings of the most heinous scenes of Ethiopia in history. Next to the miniature of sainted personages and Biblical scenes, you see executions, hangings and all sorts of refinements of the rulers are ever at a loss for a particularly cruel punishment for one of their enemies, all they have to do is to look into the church, where there are plenty of models. In Naples there used to be a museum of horrors. In Ethiopia there are hundreds. Every Monophysite church is one.

To come back to court disputes for a minute. The Abyssinians have a proverb which says: "Quarrels are necessary as bread. Without quarrels the people would sleep in the daytime as well as at night."

According to the code, a convicted thief gets his hand chopped off; a trespasser on imperial property has a foot amputated by an executioner and a too "indiscreet" philosopher stretched out on the ground, his hands held by ropes, also his feet, and his neck is lashed with an ox-hide to a wall. In the church, where there is a crime tale to murder is stealing a man's rifle. That's the sin unpardonable.

Punishments vary with the province. In the capital, under the immediate benevolent eye of the Negus, who, in spite of all that has been said about him, is nevertheless one of the mildest potentates, Ethiopia has had for centuries, criminals are treated more humanely than in the uplands. However, wherever you go, Abyssinians, and their absolute right to life and death over their slaves. But since a slave represents a valuable piece of property, he is seldom punished by his master to the extent where it would incapacitate him for work.

TODAY'S YESTERDAYS.

October 4, 1743—Henry Carey died, perhaps by his own hand, in London. To him is ascribed the melody of "America." Like the melody of the melody of "The Star-Spangled Banner," he was never in America. Nor was he ever in Denmark or Germany, in both of which countries the melody was once a national anthem.

The World War 20 Years Ago Today. October 4, 1915—President Wilson's engagement to Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt was announced. Consequently newspapers gave subordinated attention to what otherwise would have been the big story of the day: Germany, speaking through Ambassador von Bernstorff in Washington, followed up its admission of error in the sinking of the liner, Arabic, by announcing its willingness to pay indemnities to the families of the Americans lost aboard her.

Von Bernstorff's expressions of regret sounded sincere. Germany got its first favorable mention in the American press in general in many months. Yet at the very moment von Bernstorff was expending hundreds of thousands of dollars to promote disorder and destruction in the country, almost on the heels of the ambassador's profession of renewed friendship came the arrest of Robert F. Walcott, Scholz, Paul Dache, Herbert Kienzle and Max Breitung on the charge of "conspiring against the United States" by planning to blow up ships carrying American-made munitions out of war.

Fay was identified as a Prussian army lieutenant assigned to the German secret service. In his room in New York City, police found a map of New York docks and piers and four suitcases of high explosives. Evidence was found that there were 3,000 Teutonic spies in the United States.

There had been a series of fires and explosions in munitions plants and on ships bound out from New York. Within a short time there had been 40 of these, involving more than a score of deaths and property loss of $5,000,000.

Sermon in Lightning.

Two men in Gauthier, Assam, were quarreling over the possession of a donkey. Their threats, loudly hurled at each other, brought together a mob of men and women notwithstanding the fact that a thunderstorm was raging. Suddenly there was a blinding flash of lightning. When the commotion was over, it was found that the two men had been struck dumb.

A Hindu priest caused them to be brought to the market place and exhibited to the mob as an example of the way God punished men who quarreled over trivial matters.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

EPICURAEAN PASADENA, Cal.—Upon Sinclair's home is a hideout here on a street that even the taxi drivers do not know.

They will charge you $5 to find out. The Rockefeller and the Busch families (Ankers) mansions, a mile away, are easily accessible, but interviews with the political epicureans are available only by appointment. The street rumor reason for this around Los Angeles is that the man who polled 800,000 votes for Governor last year is now in retirement, or semi-retirement. The active leader of his bloc of votes is supposed to be State Senator Robert L. Olson. At least Mr. Olson is running the state Epic movement, which now controls most of the state governmental offices except that of the Governor.

But if you foregather with Mr. Sinclair, you will find that he has grander notions than retirement.

SELLING CAMPAIGN The real reason for the shift of Epic burdens appears to be that this smart politician has turned his mind to the national scene since the death of Huey Long. Mr. Sinclair will start out on a lecture tour in about ten days and hit every large city and section of the country, selling the Epic doctrines.

His organization, he says, is now in 12 states. He has no idea that this outfit can play any important political role in the next elections. In fact, he is setting up autonomous state groups, permitting them to do whatever they like in their state politics.

Mr. Sinclair's game apparently is one of waiting until President Roosevelt has failed. He will prepare while waiting. He appears to have no presidential aspirations for himself. He knows too much for that. But he certainly is scheming to put his "production for use" unemployment relief scheme into operation nationally through Mr. Roosevelt or any other political agency which happens to be available.

REACHING There lies a full understanding of the political epigrams. Sinclair, who has been using the democratic party to advance his ideas in this state. He is for Mr. Roosevelt. He will be for Mr. Roosevelt up to the 1936 democratic convention. You may quote him on that. (In fact, you may quote him on anything. He does not talk off the record, professing to have no secrets.)

Frankly, he will say his support of Mr. Roosevelt is not because he has failed or is about to fail. The only Roosevelt policy he supports is TVA. However, he is the only national figure he can be for, so he is for Mr. Roosevelt.

His Epic will put their own state of delegates in the democratic primary here next year, despite all you may have heard to the contrary. They will contest against the Farley-McAdoo delegates, not on the question of Mr. Roosevelt's renomination but solely to get an Epic plank in the democratic national platform.

Thus, further, you can see where Mr. Sinclair is reaching for the shoes that were Huey Long's.

FAULT There is one grave technical political weakness in the proposed national Epic expansion. For the benefit of people who may have come in late, it may be related that his plan is to make the unemployed earn their own way by self-supporting production for use. Mr. Roosevelt's way is to pay the unemployed from the federal treasury and let them spend the money wherever they choose.

Thus the New Deal's money goes into business; Mr. Sinclair would deprive business of that income.

Mr. Sinclair's answer to this is that the businessman would not have to pay unemployment relief taxes under his plan, but it is doubtful whether he will be able to sell many businessmen on that idea.

POLITICS The best that most republicans can see is that this fifth most important state (electorally) is doubtful. Democrats insist that they would carry it easily today. They claim to have the Epic, the regular democrats who hate the Epic and the Hiram Johnson progressive republican following. This makes a hard combination to beat, if the economically antagonistic component parts will hang together.

Certainly the New Deal support in this state, as in many another, contains the most motley assemblage ever gathered together under one banner.

POLL A Los Angeles broker, returning from San Francisco by boat the other day, took a presidential preference poll of passengers to amuse himself. He wishes he hadn't. The first-class cabin results showed 54 for Mr. Roosevelt, 14 republican and 8 communists. (Which is another indication that communism is a live cancer in this state.)

COMER This southern California community, which gave Aimee Macpherson and Bob Shuler to the nation, has another pulp politician to offer. She is Rhea Crawford, the pulp orator at Angelus Temple, since Aimee developed a yen for broadening her mind by travel. Miss Crawford learned her publicity by chasing sin out of the sin dens in New York, but never quite catching up with it. She has here. She is a well-corseted figure in local politics and will undoubtedly extend herself nationally as soon as both she and the nation are ready.

NOTES The republican county chairman in Los Angeles has been going around making speeches to Townsend clubs, which is a further tip that political matrimony is being attempted.

Upton Sinclair's study is an old tailor shop bought for $50 and moved from a main street. His house is a combination of several old houses similarly purchased and moved.

Water is the requirement for expansion in this community, and they are at last getting it now through the Boulder dam development. Optimistic businessmen say the new water will permit a 10,000,000 population around here. The population of Los Angeles is now about 1,500,000.

The communist movement among students of one local university is supposed to be larger than in any other university in the country. (Copyright, 1935, by Paul Mallon.)

When Young Ladies Cease To Be Babies. The class is composed of charming little ladies of 12 or 13 years. They are a happy crowd, enjoy their school and their lessons and have achieved an enviable social unity outside of school hours.

The other day, however, two of them overheard part of a conversation between their teacher and another woman. Just what the context was they didn't hear, but the teacher used the expression, "they're just my babies." This was reported to the class as a whole and it caused some consternation.

Young ladies of the seventh grade called "babies"! It was unbearable. After much discussion the class decided they knew the reason for the derogatory classification. And determined to remedy it.

Mothers, next morning, tried in vain to control their daughters. Every member of the class went to school adorned with rouge, powder, eyebrow penciling and lipstick.

ADUWA

—Italy's Waterloo—

FAIR ENOUGH.

It is still fair enough to West-brook Pegler, whose column of witty comment appears in this space daily, to allow him to spend a week at the World Series in Detroit and Chicago and write his impressions, which will be found on The Constitution's sports pages.

An erect figure strode along the lines, scanning them with a soldier's eye. Still in the early fifties, he had known the dangers both of war and peace, and had faced with the same calm courage the enemy in the field and the swarms springing suddenly from the cheering crowd.

Throwing back his lionine head, he addressed the troops about to embark for Ethiopia.

"Soldiers," he cried, "the land which you are going to conquer by the blood of our brothers. It is no longer a foreign land to you. You will find there still living the echoes of the heroic deeds of the men of virtue, valor and sacrifice. It is for you to emulate the glorious examples before you. . . Italy, in defense of her flag finds all her sons united."

As he finished, cheer upon ringing cheer burst from the ranks before him.

The year might have been 1935 and the orator Signor Mussolini. But it was 1896, and the Duce was a boy of 12, drinking in the teachings of the Italian revolutionaries.

While King Humbert was reviewing the reinforcements for Ethiopia in that far-off land, General Baratieri, commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in Africa, was holding a council of war with his staff.

ITALIANS OUTNUMBERED. The Ethiopians, who outnumbered the invaders by four to one, were occupying a strong position at Aduwa. The Italian commander, General Baratieri, was facing a desperate situation.

Obviously, too, he could not remain where he was. His provisions were running short and supplies coming up from the base were being intercepted by strong bands of hostile natives. The council of war decided to attack.

At 9 that evening the march began. The Italians advanced in three columns. General Baratieri, in the center, General Arimondi on the left, and General Albertone on the right. In the rear came General Ellena with the reserve. In all, the force consisted of 20,000 men, of whom about half were native auxiliaries.

For the moment, however, everything went well. By daybreak the first objectives had been reached and the Italians had occupied two ridges that looked toward Aduwa.

So far, they had met with no resistance. Albertone, encouraged by this, pushed forward from the ridge without waiting for orders, and was far in advance of the position assigned to him when he encountered the enemy.

The native troops whom the Italian general commanded fought like demons, but they were quickly overpowered. General Baratieri, after two gallant but costly attacks, the brigade retired in good order. Albertone, who had previously sent back messages to the commander-in-chief asking for reinforcements, retreated through a narrow defile. The Ethiopians plunged in after him.

Unfortunately, Baratieri had ignored the advice of his staff. He had ordered Albertone, directed to assist Albertone, to proceed without waiting for orders, and was far in advance of the position assigned to him when he encountered the enemy.

Albertone, left to his own resources, again rallied his men and delivered a valiant attack. But by this time the Ethiopians had occupied the heights and, streaming down from the crest of the hills, completed the rout of the Italians. Those who became hopelessly entangled with the supporting force as they fell back.

The broken ground was now alive with the fighting. The Italian army, however, was powerless to stop the advance they launched against the Europeans of the center.

BLACK MEN CHARGE. The black men charged recklessly up the slope, holding their fire till they had burst into the midst of the Italian ranks, when they shot down the officers at point-blank range.

Many troops had been crowded together in the one position, they had no room to deploy, and numbers of them were forced to stand still, passive spectators, and watch their comrades being butchered.

The Italians wavered and then broke. Baratieri and Arimondi flung themselves, revolver in hand, into the fray, but they were quickly overpowered. The Italians were now completely routed. They could not stop the rush.

By now, however, Baratieri had succeeded in rallying the shattered remnants of his native brigade for a final stand, and Dabormida, with what was left of six white battalions, four batteries, and a battalion of light infantry, stood firm on the right. Dabormida led three successive bayonet charges, the third of which went right through the Ethiopians, who were now in a state of panic.

But the Italians could not halt and, looking round, could see for the moment nothing but wounded men and the bodies of the dead.

The black men, however, were not to be deterred. They were now at the point of bayonet charges, they waved them in the air and shouted till the great semi-circle of mountain peaks echoed back their cheer. "Viva la Gloria!" they cried. "Long live Gloria!"

CHEER TOO SOON. But they had cheered too soon. The Ethiopians were again massing for an attack. Once more they came on, wave after wave of yelling savages, mad with the lust of blood. They charged right up to the front ranks of the gunners.

They broke through the front ranks of the infantry, again shooting the officers first.

The batteries, their ammunition exhausted, were surrounded. Again and again the ranks closed up, reformed, and again they were broken. The Italian army was now completely routed. They could not stop the rush.

His brigade had been reduced to a mere handful. But they had held the Ethiopians in check till midnight, and so given the comrades who had left them in the lurch a chance to get away. Had the main body of the Ethiopians been free to carry on the pursuit at once through the mountain defiles, the whole of the Italian army would have been annihilated—and annihilated ignominiously.

Junior Isn't Reconciled to the Bathing

Habit Till Dirt Makes Him Ashamed

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

One of the popular philosophers says that everybody wishes to be something he is not. That seems true, for the young wish to be older and the old wish to be young; the stout wish to be thin and the bony wish to be plump.

But the wish to be different is not ardent enough to cause unhappiness in the present state.

The truth is that almost all people who are free of physical afflictions are rather well satisfied with themselves as they are. A passing glance in a store-front mirror reassures and pleases them. They will defend their opinions against the world. They are satisfied with their beliefs, their standards, their interpretation of facts and their private solution of all public problems. If they were not, of course they would change.

This kind of contentment is a blessing to those who have no capacity for improvement, for it supports the self-respect that is essential to happiness; yet it is one of life's most pathetic tragedies to those who could improve if they were able to realize their need of improvement.

Consider, for example, the complacency typical of ignorance. What chance has a man to learn if he now thinks he knows it all? How can a man mend his faults if he sees none to mend?

The beginning of all reform and progress is discontent with things as they are. No man will study to become a captain if his vanity is satisfied with his status as a corporal.

Comparisons may be painful, but the man who would grow must make them. The fact that he is only a corporal doesn't prove his opinions wrong; but if he consistently disagrees with the captain, he should reflect that the captain didn't win his rank by being wrong.

The man to study is the man higher up. Compare yourself with him. His ideas and standards and ways make him what he is. If yours are different, that may explain your failure to be up there where he is. (Copyright, 1935, by The Constitution.)

BISHOP THOMAS GAILOR PASSES IN TENNESSEE

Chancellor of University of the South Was 79
Years Old.

SEWANE, Tenn., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Bishop Thomas Frank Gailor, eminent churchman and educator, reached the end of his "training for eternity" in death today.

He died at 2:10 a. m. only a few days after entering upon his 80th year. He was 79 years old on September 17.

"Training for eternity" was his own description of what life was to him. Otherwise, he said, "it is hardly worth the living."

The outlook is desperate if we have to grow up to manhood with all its trials and responsibilities and pass on into age with its feebleness and regrets, only to come to the oblivious part."

Bishop Gailor, chancellor of the University of the South since 1903 and the oldest active Protestant Episcopal bishop in this country, became seriously ill September 21, after suffering an attack of indigestion at his summer residence here.

Funeral services will be held at noon tomorrow in All Saints chapel at the University of the South. Burial in Sewanee cemetery will follow. Mrs. Gailor, who died as a result of injuries received in a fall in 1931, is buried there.

He is survived by three children, Mrs. Richard Cleveland, daughter-in-law of former President Grover Cleveland, of Baltimore; Miss Charlotte Gailor who made her home with her father, and Frank Hoyt Gailor, trustee of Shelby county (Memphis), Tennessee.

The bishop's home was in Memphis but he spent the greater part of his summers here.

Named Bishop in 1903.
He became bishop of Tennessee in 1903, and chancellor and president of the board of trustees of the university 10 years later. Education had been one of his chief interests from the time he entered the priesthood, and at one time he declined a position as bishop of Georgia in order to remain at Sewanee.

In 1903 he became bishop coadjutor of the diocese and after five years succeeded Bishop Quintard to full Episcopal jurisdiction upon the latter's death.

His friendships knew no bounds of nationalism or class. He had discussed politics and exchanged pleasantries with King George V, swapped yarns with Theodore Roosevelt and enjoyed the warm regard of other presidents, including Grover Cleveland.

When he attended the Lambeth conference at Canterbury cathedral, England, in 1920, it was he who presented the American bishops and their wives to Queen Mary at a garden party at Buckingham palace.

He visited Japan in 1923 and preached the sermon at the consecration of the Rt. Rev. Joseph S. Motoda, first Japanese bishop.

Bishop James M. Maxon, bishop coadjutor of Tennessee, said of Bishop Gailor in 1933 on the 40th anniversary of his consecration as bishop:

Knew Many Rulers.
"I know of no living American who during the past 50 years has had as many contacts as Bishop Gailor."

Among the persons he had known, said Bishop Maxon, were the Emperor of Japan and the Dowager Empress of China, Queen Victoria and King Edward VII, the king of Italy and his father before him, and the former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany.

A native of Jackson, Miss., Bishop Gailor was born September 17, 1856. The son of Frank Marion and Charlotte Moffett Gailor, he was a descendant of Chevalier Oliver de Gailard, chancellor of France during the reign of Charles III.

Active in many affairs, he was a former vice president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, represented Tennessee in the National Division Congress, was an arbitrator in several union labor disputes, a member of the Tennessee Coal Commission and a member of the committee of 48 on foreign relations and national defense.

As a young priest Bishop Gailor married Miss Ellen Cunningham, of Nashville, Tenn. She was fatally injured in a fall in 1931.

FIRST BLOW AIMED BY A. F. L. FACTION

Craft Unionists Score Point In Threatening Industrial Group.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor's metal trades department struck blow No. 1 today in what promises to be the big fight of the federation's annual convention here—the scrap between the craft unionists and industrial union allies.

The department adopted a resolution calling for revocation of the oil field and refinery workers' charter within 30 days unless that industrial union surrenders a number of members to craft unions. The resolution also called for the department's officers to introduce a resolution to that effect in the general convention starting Monday.

John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and leader of those federation forces who think mass production workers should be organized by industry rather than by craft, expects to renew his fight to keep the craft unions out of steel, automobiles, oil, the western metal mines and other big industries when the convention starts.

He and his allies say that one big union for each big industry would give the workers far more strength than the craft organization could offer.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Four men were reported in "serious" condition tonight of burns received in the explosion of a chemical tank at a chemical plant here.

Four others were discharged when their injuries did not prove bad. The tank, at the Wood Chemical Products Company plant here, burst last night of George E. McCall, in either because of a leak, officials said. The injured, all employees, were splattered with the boiling distillate.

BALTIMORE EXPLOSION FATAL TO 4TH PERSON

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The death toll in a premature explosion of powder at a stone quarry here rose to four today.

Three men were killed instantly. They were H. McKenney Miller, Charlotteville, Va.; Harry Liptrap, 38, and his brother, Luther Liptrap, 36, both of Catonsville.

Three others were injured but were expected to recover.

Greater need has no man than for a topcoat that will fill in at this period of the year, what with its chilly mornings and evenings. Appearance need not be sacrificed in this emergency, however, as there are a number of topcoats that combine all the practical requirements, including that of being weatherproof, with the added ingredient of smartness.

EX-COURT CLERK BUILDING IN SOUTH HELD IN CALIFORNIA SHOWS BIG UPTURN

Tampa's Tip Results in Arrest of Former Official on Theft Charges.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 3.—(AP)—A resident of Tampa, whose name was closely guarded, provided the tip that brought the arrest in San Diego, Cal., last night of George E. McCall, indicted ex-clerk of criminal court missing since May 13.

Sheriff D. C. Coleman disclosed today he received the information over the telephone Monday, telegraphed San Diego and sent an air mail letter containing the missing McCall's photograph.

He was arrested, Coleman was informed, at the Albany Hotel cafe in San Diego, where he was working. A deputy sheriff will leave here tomorrow with the necessary extradition papers, the Dade sheriff advised Police Chief George F. Sears, of San Diego.

Final check of McCall's books, completed September 27, showed he was short $15,154.06, although the grand jury's indictment returned June 15 charged him with only $10,000 shortage. An information Fred Pine, former county solicitor, filed against him June 6 charged he had embezzled $15,641.87.

Governor Dave Sholtz removed the indicted clerk June 27 and William P. Moody later replaced him.

DOGGLING BOONS

FERA Worker Thought Dead Says He's Working.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 3.—(UP)—At first they thought George Weir was dead. Then they accused him of sleeping on the job. He wasn't either. He was doggling boons, and doing a thorough job of it.

The FERA recruited George from the army of unemployed and assigned him to gainful occupation in one of its variegated fields of endeavor. His job was to catch rats.

Residents of Pine street thought it was a human cadaver lying in the weeds of a vacant lot. They sounded the alarm. The cops came clomping through the brush and up jumped George.

"What's up? I was just lying here with my head on my hand watching a rat trap. Asleep? Oh, no, I was working."

BAKING COMPANY HERE PUSHES SAFETY DRIVE

Stone Company Tells of Campaign Conducted Among Its Own Drivers.

In an effort to stem the ever increasing tide of accidents the Stone Baking Company has inaugurated a safety drive which will run at least the balance of the year. Commenting on the campaign, E. F. Wright, manager of the company, today stated:

"Promotion of safety observance is not the function of any particular agency. It is the duty of every business house and every individual as well. We operate quite a number of motor vehicles for the distribution of our products and safety observance has always been the first rule of the drivers of our trucks. Because of our rigid adherence to the fundamentals of safety I am proud to say our company holds one of the finest safety records in the baking industry."

"Last August we started a general safety campaign, joining forces with the National Safety Council and other civic agencies in an attempt to make the public more safety conscious. Our motor trucks are equipped with frames on their sides which carry large posters requesting the public to 'Play Safe' and observe the 'Signs of Safety'."

"We have extended our efforts into this field purely as a good will project. We feel we are an integral part of the community and as such we are interested in making this city a safer place in which to live."

Mr. Wright said only through eternal vigilance would the goal be reached. He reported that every member of the company has personally pledged support to this campaign.

FAIR, COOL WEATHER SLATED TO CONTINUE

Clear, cool weather seems to be Atlanta's prospect, at least through the remaining days of the Southeastern Fair this week-end, according to estimate late yesterday from the weather bureau.

Some rainfall has helped the farmers in southeast Georgia, but none is in prospect for the northern section of the state, where some could be used by the farmers, it was said by George W. Mindling, chief meteorologist.

The sun warmed Atlanta up to 81 degrees yesterday, the bureau reported. Yesterday morning's low temperature was 46 degrees, the lowest this fall. Today it is expected that the maximum during the day will be no higher than 72 degrees and this morning's lowest around 50 degrees.

Frost was reported yesterday in east Tennessee and western North Carolina.

IMPEACHMENT SOUGHT OF DENVER RUM CZAR

DENVER, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A threat to "blow the lid" off an alleged liquor scandal was backed up today by Governor Ed C. Johnson, who announced a special session of the legislature will be called October 30 to consider impeachment of James H. Carr, secretary of state.

Carr, whose management of the state liquor department drew fire from Johnson, passed up the 10 a. m. "deadline" given him by the Governor without answering 34 questions propounded by Johnson. In one, Johnson asked Carr if he had any connection with an alleged $5,000 "shakedown" of a Denver drug firm which lost its state license through a failure to pay taxes.

Among the individual pledges received yesterday were representatives from all parts of Georgia.

The Rev. Spencer B. King, of Blakeley, sent in his signed pledge with the notation that all who try to observe the safe driving rules ought to be protected with enforced legislation against the persistent violators.

Mrs. E. C. McDowell, of Social Circle, points especially to the highway peril of cars with only one headlight and asks that the stickers for her car be sent promptly "to let other people know I am willing to abide by the rules that mean safety for humanity."

From Dallas, Ga., comes a request for pledge blanks and car stickers for members of the Dallas P. T. A. A supply has been forwarded.

A similar request for 75 pledges and 150 stickers for the P. T. A. of Glenwood school, Decatur, has met a like response. The Safety Council of the Constitution will be only too glad to send all the pledge blanks and stickers.

Drivers at Fish Fry.
Yesterday taxicab drivers of Atlanta celebrated the culmination of a safety drive conducted by the Black and White Drivers' Safety Council when they enjoyed a fish fry given at the Monroe Nursery at 1898 North Boulevard.

Every taxicab driver in the city, incidentally, has signed the Safe Driving pledge of The Constitution.

All white drivers are members of the Drivers' Safety Council and participated in a recent campaign which achieved remarkable results in reduction of accidents. Winners in a safety slogan contest were sent, at company expense, to Panama City, where they caught the fish which provided the basis for yesterday's fish fry. The program was given from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 6 to 8 o'clock last night, in order not to interfere with the regular taxicab service.

300 Drivers Present.
Among those attending were more than 300 drivers, officials of the taxicab company and their families. Both Jurists of the recorder's court, Judges Cose and Callaway, were present, as well as Mayor Key, members of the city police committee, Police Chief Poole, Fire Chief Parker and other city officials.

The company furnished transportation for all guests to the fish fry. Officers and members of the executive board of the Drivers' Safety Council are J. W. Fuller, president; I. A. Ludi, secretary-treasurer; J. W. Heston, D. W. Tucker, E. P. Kellem, J. D. Bryant, A. C. Baker, R. J. Thompson and L. T. Thompson.

Italy's Motorized Legions Take Ethiopian Outpost Defenses

Scenes From Troubled Ethiopia Showing Places Where Italian Bombs May Land, Dealing Death and Destruction Among Subjects of Selassie

Main street. One of the principal streets in Harar, Ethiopian center of commerce.

Target. If hostile planes bomb Addis Ababa, this memorial church to Emperor Menelik II, conqueror of the Italians at Adowa, surely will be bombed, the natives fear. The gold dome is visible miles around.

Call to arms. The throbbing rhythm of these drums summoned the natives to battle.

Non-Combatants Are Mowed Down; Red Cross Hospital Said Bombed

Long-Delayed General Mobilization Calls 1,250,000 To Take Arms Today; Anti-Aircraft Batteries Posted in Concealed Replacements.

Others said they would pitch camp in the hills early tomorrow before daybreak.

Guns Set Up.

Seven anti-aircraft guns were set up at Adama, a village a half hour down the railway line, in an effort to intercept any planes which might approach the capital.

All Italians were herded into the Italian legation, which presumably was well known to the Italian bombing pilots for safety.

General mobilization was ordered by the king of kings in a dramatic scene at the old imperial palace at 11 a. m. At a signal from the Lion of Judah the 44 war drums began a heavy throbbing which could be heard for miles. It was taken up in ever-widening circles until by tonight the entire country was a throbbing with its muffled thunder.

Warriors rushed from their huts, swinging spears and rifles that were new a generation ago, to join their chiefs and march to district headquarters for orders.

The war office, where the emperor's Belgian, Swedish and Turkish military advisers worked far into the night, estimated more than 1,250,000 warriors would be in the field by tomorrow morning, ready to combat the Italian advance.

50,000 Troops Called.

The Ras Khabada and three generals with 50,000 troops were ordered to march at top speed from Desseye, northeast of the capital, to Mount Mousa Ali, where the Italians were reported to have established a military and air attack base on Ethiopian soil.

Fierce fighting was reported to night in that section of Aussa province, near the French-Somali border. It was believed Ras Khabada had established contact.

Government reports indicated the major lines of Italian attack were:

1. From Asmara, Eritrea, toward Adowa, in the north.

2. Into the province of Agami, in the northeast.

3. From Mousa Ali, in the east.

4. From Walwal, on the Italian-Somali frontier in the south.

A wholly unconfirmed report said the Italians had advanced seven kilometers on the southern front, moving down with machine guns 800 Ethiopians who attempted to charge them.

There was heavy skirmishing along the Somali frontier. Word was twitted from Djennet Hapte Mikael, in command of 25,000 Galla cavalrymen, Mikael, a veteran of Adowa, was prepared to sacrifice himself and his "suicide battalion" to stem the flood of Italian tanks, trucks and armored cars.

The war office tonight had no reports regarding a rumored Ethiopian victory over Italians advancing from Italian Somaliland, in the south. The reports were doubted.

Italians Dig In.

A high army official who came in hurriedly from Gondar, scene of heaviest defense preparations, north of the capital, told the United Press the Italians were fortifying their advance positions in that sector, rather than continuing the "big push."

Gondar lies on the gradual slope leading up to Lake Gondar, British sphere of influence. It is the most accessible path to the central plateau. For that reason, the official said, the Ethiopians have massed 350,000 men in that sector. Tank traps have been evacuated and small forts constructed on hilltops.

Skies were almost cloudless after steady rain for five days. After the first flurry of excitement during mobilization ceremonies, the capital was amazingly tranquil. Eight hundred warriors who went to the palace last night and received arms from the emperor, trotted out into the bush on some unexplained errand without causing comment. A mule train plodded through the streets carrying heavy machine guns.

The palace was a scene of intense activity. Minister of Foreign Affairs Belate Gheba Heroy repeatedly sent dispatches to the League of Nations informing Geneva of latest war reports. He reported the Italian bombers on their first sweep across Adowa destroyed 15 houses and at Adigrat demolished 100.

Adowa Said in Flames.

Later, two of the planes roared over the smoldering city of Adowa and bombarded the clearly marked Red Cross hospital, Heroy reported.

Unconfirmed reports said Adowa was in flames.

Mobilization evoked a scene which demonstrated the full savage power of Ethiopia's swarming manpower. Wide-spaced beats on a huge war drum antedating the late King Menelik called warriors to the old palace yard. Men, women and children flocked to the call.

Newspapermen summoned by special invitation were caught in the tightly-massed streams of humanity which flowed through the narrow streets.

At 11:24 a. m., a towering, fuzzy-headed black hammer two strokes on the war drum to command silence. Then a functionary began reading the emperor's proclamation. He stood on a stone block, high above the bobbing heads.

Mobilization Order.

In a sing-song voice he proclaimed: "We, Haile Selassie, proclaim that conflict has been existing between Italy and our country since almost a year ago, born at Walwal on December 5. Our soldiers, serving as escort for an international commission, were attacked in our territory by Italian troops."

"Italy following this attack demanded reparations and apologies, which were refused. When after much resistance on Italy's part, we were able, thanks to our perseverance and efforts before the League council, to bring this difference before arbiters, they unanimously recognized we were guiltless and fault was imputed to Italy."

"In consequence, the arbitrators refused to condemn us to make reparations and apologies which Italy demanded without right. But Italy, which for a long time has not concealed a desire to acquire this country, prepared to attack."

"Renouncing her signature, which she gave to the League covenant, violating the peace promises solemnly made us in 1928 in the Italo-Ethiopian treaty, reducing to nil all international engagements, notably the pact renouncing war, Italy prepares for a second time to violate our territory."

"Red Invaders."

"The hour is grave! Let us raise ourselves, take arms and rush to our country's call to defense! Soldiers! Rally to your chiefs! Obey them with single hearts and repel the invader!"

"May those unable because of weakness and infirmity to take part in this sacred quarrel, help us by their prayers."

Five Steps Geneva May Take in Crisis

GENEVA, Oct. 3.—(AP)—League of Nations officials said tonight the next steps which the League may take in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, following outbreak of hostilities made known today, are as follows:

1. A decision by the council when it meets Saturday to convene the assembly immediately because of the gravity of the situation.

2. Consideration of the question and decision as to whether, in fact, there has been unprovoked aggression in defiance of the League covenant.

3. If unprovoked aggression is established as a fact, a verdict whether Italy or Ethiopia committed the aggression.

4. If the aggressor is determined, a decision in principle to apply sanctions against the aggressor.

5. Determination of the method of applying sanctions.

Opinion all over the world is revolted by this aggression against us. God be with us. All up! For the emperor! For our country!"

Warriors, screaming denunciation of Italy, stormed through the palace courtyards until they found the building of the emperor. They yelled about, shouting and brandishing weapons, until Haile Selassie made a brief address.

"Death to Foreigners."

Townpeople shouted "Death to foreigners!" and accompanied the triple drumbeat of the ceremonial drums with their customary triple handclap. Warriors broke out of the courtyard laughing uproariously at the prospect facing Italy—unknown what modern warfare is like.

Natives danced in the streets to private war drums.

Culture wheeled high overhead.

EMBARGO PREPARED FOR U. S. MUNITIONS

Step Is Taken To Insure Continued American Neutrality in Crisis.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A proclamation for clamping an embargo on munitions shipments to Italy and Ethiopia was drafted tentatively at the state department today as an extraordinary step toward insuring continued American neutrality.

Only official confirmation that the undeclared war raging in Africa was a determination that "a state of war" existed between Italy and Ethiopia was awaited by Secretary Hull and his advisers before recommending to President Roosevelt the issuance of arms embargo directed by that statute.

The chief executive, cruising on a warship in the Pacific, was kept fully informed of Italo-Ethiopian developments by Hull. But the secretary declined any comment on movements of Rome's modern legions beyond assuring newsmen that the government was prepared, fully and adequately, for immediate action in any emergency.

Besides the arms embargo, an official determination that "a state of war" exists also would authorize Mr. Roosevelt to issue a proclamation warning all American citizens against traveling on vessels of either belligerent nation, except on his own risk.

Issuance of that proclamation would affect American travel only on Italian liners, since Ethiopia has no merchant marine.

Hull, assisted by Joseph C. Green, chief of the office of arms and munitions control, was the author of the tentative embargo proclamation, violation of which would be punishable by a fine of $10,000 and five years' imprisonment.

Once the proclamation is issued, the neutrality act provides that it "shall be unlawful for any American vessel to carry any arms, munitions, or implements of war to any port or to any neutral port for transportation to, or for the use of, a belligerent country."

Details of the proposed proclamation were closely guarded, but well informed observers believed it was comprehensive in the arms, munitions, and implements of war named in the act setting up the national munitions control board.

That list included articles for actual use on the battlefield. But it could be extended at any time to include raw materials or anything Mr. Roosevelt might define as "munitions."

Since neither Italy nor Ethiopia have officially declared war, the outbreak of hostilities in Africa has created a delicate diplomatic point.

Although the neutrality act makes it mandatory on the president to prohibit to any original belligerent nation, he has discretionary power concerning imposition of an embargo on other nations which might be drawn into the conflict.

Mussolini Displays His Mighty Air Forces

ROME, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Italy, it was estimated reliably today, has nearly 350,000 soldiers in Africa or on their way.

A big air force, much motorized equipment and the most modern guns have been sent. Some 200,000 troops are known to have sailed from Italian ports. There are 30,000 others on the way.

Native troops in Eritrea and Somaliland are estimated at 60,000 and many men have been sent to Eritrea from Libya.

This large army, military experts said, is not excessive, since it will have to combat "1,000,000" Ethiopians on their own ground.

Airplanes estimated at 500 are divided among Eritrea, Libya and Somaliland. One cruiser, two destroyers and two gunboats are in the Red sea.

A matching display to Hitler's boasts of air might took place as pictured here on the 12th anniversary of the establishment of a unified air force. Mussolini, inset, used the opportunity to utter a warning.

Atlanta Short Wave Radio Fans Hear War Reports From Ethiopia

Atlanta short-wave radio fans last night were enjoying all the horrors of war amid all the comforts of home.

Amusing, mysterious and unintelligible were the messages crackling out of Africa through the ether waves on the heels of telegraphic reports Italy had fired the first gun of the predicted Italo-Ethiopian war.

G. E. Kennington, of 808 Oak street, S. W., reported reception of one message which described some of the vicissitudes of a war correspondent's existence. It was directed to a newspaper in Sydney, Australia, and read:

"War started, banks closed. Send 100. Here until bombed, then to Adowa."

The message came from Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, where the memorial cathedral to King Menelik II and its golden dome provide a target visible for miles to artillery observers and their airplane spotters or to bombers.

A message at 6:30 o'clock last night informed England that the reported outbreak of hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia had not been confirmed. The message stated the battle was in full swing with artillery clearly audible.

Another said the attack was central at "Axium," where Queen of Sheba ranged, but this was believed to be code as "Axium" has not been mentioned in dispatches.

Police radio station WPDY also caught messages from the war zone. One overheard while tuned to KSD at Davenport, England, related details of Ethiopian mobilization and heavy casualties among women and children in an air raid by Italian planes.

Stations best received, listeners reported, were ETA in Ethiopia and GOM in England.

PEACE STAND OF F. D. R. IS LAUDED IN GERMANY

Hitler Government Reiterates Position to Keep Out of African Dispute.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's declaration that the United States will remain "at peace with all the world" today denied the federal government to express the attitude of the third reich.

The German conduct in an Italo-Ethiopian war was set forth in Diplomatic-Political Correspondence, designated by the foreign office to express the reich's official policy. With respect to President Roosevelt's statement at San Diego, Cal., yesterday, the publication said:

"The American administration has marked the United States as a factor for peace which will be well received by the American people without exception."

"But also outside the United States this firm peace confession will be welcomed everywhere that an equally high esteem for peace and good relations between the states rules."

"In Germany, President Roosevelt's announcement of fundamental principles meets with understanding. For it agrees with the viewpoint which has been the cardinal principle of the German foreign policy, as der fuhrer and Reichschancellor Hitler declared in his most recent speeches at Nurnberg."

"Germany, which has shown through actual acts that it holds peace a fundamental policy, can take this viewpoint and through this conduct make a valuable contribution toward the maintenance of peace."

Apart from Paul Scheffer's comment in Berliner Tageblatt that Italy's advance in Ethiopia served to "express an unquestionable will for war," the Berlin press was extremely cautious in its war comment.

It contented itself with speculation on the action of the League of Nations, but steered clear of any reference as to how Germany would be affected by the impositions of sanctions.

WORD 'WAR' THUNDERS ACROSS AFRICA, EUROPE

British Government Supports League to Utmost in Effort to Restrain Italy.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The dread word "war," which enthusiastic world statesmen once declared to be rendered obsolete, thundered across Europe and Africa tonight, as word went out from authoritative quarters the British government is supporting the League of Nations to the utmost for quick action to restrain Italy in its African venture.

Officials announced in Paris Anthony Eden, British minister for League affairs, and Premier Pierre Laval had agreed to seek direct action by the League against Italy.

It was stated they decided to ask the League to request its members to sever all economic and financial relations with Italy, to counter charges, and to halt all trade with Italy.

A Reuters dispatch from Addis Ababa reported that Italian Consul-General at Adowa before leaving burned the consulate and that Ethiopians believed Italy may accuse them of the fire as an excuse for an invasion.

Eden left for Paris en route to Geneva carrying the grim instructions of the British cabinet to go the limit under the League banner in pursuit of peace at almost the exact moment word came Ethiopia had ordered mobilization of its army and that Italy had bombed Adowa from the air.

Advances Confirmed.

Officials at Whitehall sadly remarked, "the dispute has now definitely become war," as they heard first electrifying reports of hostilities, which were followed by a confused medley of charges, counter-charges, reports of atrocities, air-bombing, advances, retreats and casualties.

The Italian advances were officially confirmed here and at Geneva and elsewhere by Italian diplomats who said the moves were necessitated in the interest of self-defense. The outbreak of hostilities apparently caught most of Europe's diplomats flat-footed, although they came almost exactly as they had been predicted.

Authoritative sources here said they believed the Italian attacks violated Article XV of the League covenant under which nations cannot carry on aggressive hostilities while the League is trying to conciliate the dispute. They said if the League council upholds this viewpoint, it constitutes a violation of Article XII, which means Article XVI—involving sanctions—must be brought into force against Italy.

Geneva to Name Aggressor.

It was stated the day's developments will force radical alteration in the routine at Geneva, where the council must now determine, if war exists, which is the aggressor, and proceed to the adoption of measures to try to restore peace instead of continuing arbitration talks which were abruptly terminated today.

Authoritative sources refused to comment on the charges of Emperor Haile Selassie, of Ethiopia, that civilians and hospitals at Adowa were bombed by Italians, pending confirmation of the charges. Diplomatic circles, however, said if they are true they are regarded as definitely outlawing Premier Mussolini's charges during untrue the Italian claim the advance was in the interest of defense and not of conquest.

Bombing to Unite Britons.

British civilians, remembering the terror of the Zeppelin bombing of their cities during the World War, read today's reports with horror. "It was felt here that if the reported Italian bombing is confirmed, it will greatly solidify all Britain in support of its government to go the limit to halt Mussolini."

Valor of Ignorance Will Serve Ethiopians in Desperate Warfare

By LAURENCE STALLINGS. GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, ETHIOPIAN ARMIES IN THE FIELD, VIA HARAR, Oct. 3.—As war flares in the northern provinces, no one in this armed nerve center of Ethiopia cares to predict anything as to the conflict between Ethiopia and Italy.

Though a 11 Ethiopian officials are bending every agency to provisioning and arming troops and there is a surprising amount of arms and equipment pouring through Djibouti, to the south, the Somali army, the general attitude seems one of blind ignorance to such operations. It is the same to the west, where, from Dire Dawa, supplies begin the tortuous road to the north.

Watching the peasant infantry stream through the towns, their wives pleading to go along, their commanders straight-faced and grim with the awareness taught them in the Swedish and Belgian schools at Addis Ababa, an observer knows, regardless of wild goose opinions, that these people will resort to guerrilla fighting early—headless of tactics, commanders and arms.

Medieval Weapons, Horrors.

One should not like to be among the Italian invaders, even though served with the best weapons which the League of Nations to such instruments can provide.

The Ethiopians are pressing forward to a conflict which, from their notions, seems to be one with late eighteenth century weapons. Certainly, the French inside Blenheim—in so far as the peasant goes—were hardly less well equipped to meet Marienbourg's invaders.

Here tradition among the Gallas is one of conflict. They are fighters, though not warlike in their organization. They are seldom marksmen, the ordinary European soldier being as effective with a revolver as they are with a rifle, their deficiency in this respect, being the result of a scarcity of cartridges since time immemorial. A recruit in a week's work on a western rifle range will fire more rounds than will an Ethiopian in a lifetime.

This one can be sure, will not be the case again. The nobles and squires of the feudalism, who supply their retainers with rifles, know from the obvious comments of correspondents how seriously this penalty in the matter of ammunition has affected the hitting power of Ethiopia's peasant infantry—the irregulars upon whose guerrilla genius the fate of an attacked Ethiopia must rest.

Good Rifles.

"I have completely returned my people," one such noble told this correspondent. "The 200 who render me yeoman service—none pays a farthing tax for his land, the sole obligation being that of bearing arms—are now equipped with new Mausers and with 200 rounds of ammunition per man."

On examining the rifles, one discovered that such was the pride of the bearers that they had made tampons of rags to bottle the muzzles of the rifles against rust in the bore—a practice which would earn a western recruit some unpleasant extra duty and which will, if the tampons are not removed, cause serious firings in the ranks at time of firing.

As to where 200 Mausers were obtained is an easy speculation but it is not so easily proved. Doubtless they were following the 220 who many came from the Sudan, running left Tuesday.

FOREIGN CONSULATES GUARDED IN ARGENTINA

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Police guards were placed at the embassies and consulates of Italy and Great Britain today to guard against any possibility of incidents in connection with the Italo-Ethiopian situation. It was expected the guards would be maintained throughout the conflict.

The Italian consulate here stated the consulate throughout Argentina had received yesterday and today hundreds of offers from Italians residing in Argentina who wished to volunteer for service, but only a small number were expected to be accepted. A second contingent of volunteers will sail next week following the 220 who left Tuesday.

Britain, France Agree To Press for Embargo Against Italy

TWO WOULD SELL ARMS TO ETHIOPIA

Pledging Mutual Aid, Both Agree to Demand Sanctions by League.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Great Britain and France today agreed on a joint program before the League of Nations which calls for the immediate severance by League members of financial and economic relations with Italy and possible financial help to Ethiopia.

The third of the three points of the agreement, French officials announced, favor prohibition of purchase of Italian goods by League members or sale of goods to Mussolini's nation, including war munitions and their transportation.

Premiere Pierre Laval, after an hour's conference with Anthony Eden, British minister of League of Nations affairs, which preceded the agreement, stated:

To Lift Arms Embargo.

"Mr. Eden and I talked over the order of the day for the council of the League. We have considered various methods of procedure. We will continue in close collaboration in Geneva."

Under the second provision of the agreement, which binds Italy to help Emperor Haile Selassie in national defense, is included also the lifting of the arms embargo against the African empire.

Eden, it was authoritatively stated, disposed of the suggestion for the closing of the Suez canal—through which Italy's troops which the zone of war—by reporting the British cabinet thought such an action too risky.

Britain's request for French assistance if Italy attacks the British Mediterranean fleet will receive the official approval of the cabinet tomorrow, officials said.

Laval promised Eden such a reply, officials continued, in return for the same guarantees from Britain in case France is attacked.

Laval will leave for Geneva after tomorrow's cabinet session where he will join Laval.

Italians in Paris Attacked.

Members of the chamber of deputies, who have not been informed of the government's stand while parliament is on vacation, were assured Laval would break his tight-lipped policy to answer their questions at a hearing of the foreign affairs committee but not before October 23.

The Italian ambassador, Vittorio Cerutti, called on Laval today, presumably to explain Italy's advance into Ethiopia.

A clash between a group demonstrating against Italy and police at Toulouse injured several persons. The occasion was the departure of 50 Italian soldiers for military service in Italy.

After fighting on the station platform, the demonstrators were dispersed and none of the Italians was injured.

French officials predicted the League would take prompt action.

FRAUDS ARE CHARGED TO MEMBER OF BOARD

by crafty politicians to divert the attention of the people from the fundamental considerations that were so thoroughly treated by the July-August grand jury. Mr. Longino said.

The Johnsons and their associates had to have been accompanied by photographic copies of letters and documents tending to show that Longino misused the money for his own purposes while he was chairman of the board during 1934 and as a commissioner up to August of 1935.

Charges Are Located.

A carbon copy of the charges and photostatic copies of the letters and records purporting to be similar to those laid before the grand jury Wednesday came into the hands of the Constitution yesterday. The originals were said to have been turned over to H. G. King, chairman of the special grand jury committee probing the county commission.

Longino was quoted as saying Wednesday when all five commissioners appeared in a body before the grand jury group.

Continued in the charges, it was understood, was one concerning land rented by the county from Commissioner Longino.

It was reported that Johnson produced county records showing that county paid Longino, his father, J. H. Longino, and one S. R. Young the sum of $200 a year for rental of about 40 acres of land farmed by the white industrial firm.

Rental Admitted.

In a statement to the July-August grand jury, which investigated Longino's charges that the majority faction is wasteful and extravagant with county money, Longino was quoted as saying he rented 153 acres of land to the county two years before he was elected to the commission in 1932.

In the photostatic copies of documents was a letter to the late H. M. Wood, clerk of the commission, to Longino. It said, in part:

"Enclosed find county warrant No. 32818, in the amount of $800, drawn in favor of S. R. Young, J. H. Longino, and George F. Longino, covering rent of 40 acres of land used by the white industrial firm for the years 1929, 1930 and 1931. It was signed by H. M. Wood, clerk. The letter was dated April 18, 1932."

Three other photostatic copies of letters from Wood to Longino were understood to have been given the jurymen, covering rent on the same land for other years.

It was understood Johnson pointed out to the jury committee that Longino apparently had not received any rent on his land until he became commissioner.

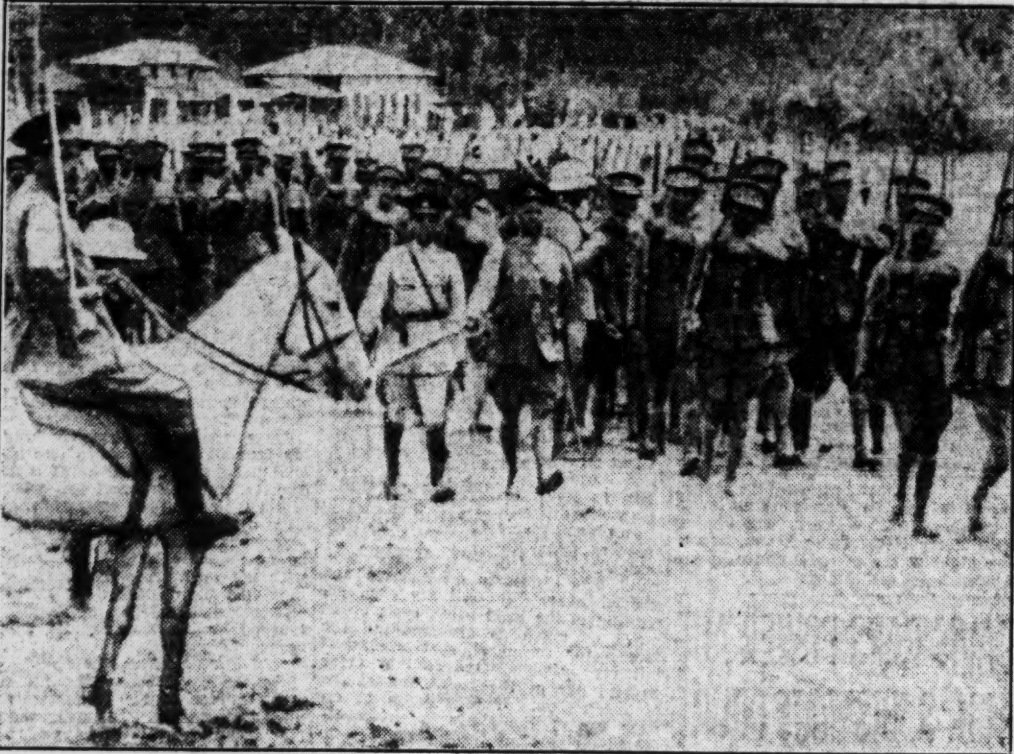

Another Charge.

It was reported that the majority leader laid before the committee a letter from Longino, as chairman of the commission, to Fred C. Woodall, containing the following statements:

"Referring to your favor of March 20, regarding fidelity bonds covering the various employees of the municipal court, which you have been writing and making divisions of the commission with the Empire Trust Company, beg to advise I will be glad for you to continue to handle this business with the understanding that one of the commissions be given to the A. P. Smith Insurance Company, College Park, Ga."

It was understood that Johnson told the jurymen that Smith is a brother-in-law of Longino and that to-

Black Shirt Soldiers of Mussolini Drive Into Ethiopia by Land, Air

Newly-Dug Wells Will Furnish Fresh Supply of Water as Troops Push Toward Aduwa Over Italian-Built Stone Roads.

By WEBB MILLER.

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS,

ITALIAN ARMIES IN THE FIELD

(Via Asmara Eritrea, by Courier)—

Oct. 3.—(UP)—Italy's formidable African army drove into Ethiopia today by air and land, the determined troops singing gaily they would make a little brush of Haile Selassie's heard to polish the boots of Benito Mussolini.

Initial objectives on the northern front, heart of the campaign, were Aduwa where an Italian army was massed 20 years ago, and Adigala to the east. Addis Ababa, capital of the black empire, was the ultimate objective of the greatest army ever assembled in Africa, as announced by the legend "the route to Addis Ababa" chalked on Italian tanks and army trucks.

At dawn squadrons of planes roared across the frontier, bound for Aduwa, to wipe out memories of the Italian defeat there in 1906. Heavy bombers loaded with high explosives were preceded by fast little fighting planes bristling with machine guns.

They were followed by the army, marching in battle order.

Thin lines of skirmishers were first across the shallow Mareb river as the zero hour struck. Machine guns followed. Then came long, thick columns of infantry, pouring southward into a valley between great mountain peaks, pointed into the heart of Ethiopia.

Soldiers Cross River.

The soldiers crossed the river, so recently at flood stage, at widely separated points, but all converged quickly and in perfect order to the center of the river.

It was necessary to move in columns because the general staff decided, because of the terrifically formidable nature of the rough terrain, to move the army along valleys.

The squadrons of bombing planes, fighting planes and observation planes roared away from Asmara, Italian base, and other fields over rugged mountain peaks. They had to reach altitudes of 10,000 to 11,000 feet to cross the encircling mountains around Aduwa, where the Italians were reported to be in the hands of the frontier. Aduwa is 18 miles south and 4 miles east of Asmara, only a few minutes' flight from the planes intent on subjugating the ancient empire of the Ethiopians, never conquered.

As the advance progressed in the night, the Italian general, General Emilio de Bono, commander-in-chief of the colonial armies and veteran colonial fighter, moved his staff headquarters to Aduwa, where he was expected to encounter the Ethiopian army.

Duce's Sons Fly Planes.

Just before the bombing squadrons took off, Count Galeazzo Ciano, commander of the "Desperate Squadron" and Mussolini's son-in-law, told this correspondent he expected to encounter either they operate the insurance firm of Longino & Sons, Inc.

Copy of Check Produced.

Photostatic copies of reply from Woodall and a check on the Fulton National Bank for $85.25, drawn by Longino, and countersigned by A. P. Smith over the stamp of Longino & Sons, Inc., were likewise presented the jurors by the majority leader, it was understood.

Connection With Redwine.

It also was understood that Johnson asked the jurymen to investigate Longino's connection with a certain Mr. R. Redwine, who, it was reported, he suggested to be called before the grand jury.

Commissioner Johnson was said to have turned over to the jurors photostatic copies of letters to Johnson E. Molenkin, of 10 Pryor street, J. Wilson Parker, and B. F. Jones Jr., both of Fairburn, all of which bore the name of Longino.

A postscript on each of the letters asked that Mr. R. Redwine be given all as a portion of certain county insurance business.

The letter to Molenkin said in part: "It is my pleasure to advise you that under the Fulton county fire insurance schedule, you are authorized to issue a five-year policy for $15,000 effective May 4, 1934. I will thank you to issue this policy and forward it to Mr. H. M. Wood, clerk."

"P. S. I will thank you to place all or a portion of this business with the companies represented by Redwine."

All Almost Identical.

All the letters were the same except in the amount of insurance and each purportedly was signed by Longino as chairman of the board.

It was understood that Johnson asked the jurymen to determine what connection, if any, existed between Longino and Redwine or Longino and the companies represented by Redwine.

The advice of the solicitor-general on what procedure to take in investigating the criminal aspects of the charges was said to have been recommended to the King committee by Johnson.

Other charges made involved a Buick automobile purchased from the Buick Buick Company in December anti-aircraft guns at Aduwa. With another squadron were Mussolini's two sons, Bruno, 18, and Vittorio, 19.

It was not known if any warning of the attack was given the Ethiopian civilian population. It had been indicated that a proclamation might be dropped from planes.

The night was one of feverish activity as the troops took position on the north bank of the Mareb river, ready to cross. At dawn the skirmishers, bayoneted rifles ready, waded the sluggish stream and stepped onto Ethiopian soil.

The army took off from the low hills on the Italian side of the river, at the end of fine stone roads Italians had hacked from the mountainsides, at the end of a new system of wells which supplied them with water, from the thousands and thousands of tons of supplies packed in stone buildings, from the thousands of low conical tents which had sheltered the troops on the Asmara plateau.

The faced hill after hill on the Ethiopian side, hills separated by great gorges, an obstacle difficult to conquer even without an enemy. But the Italian soldiers faced the prospect joyfully.

Italians Sing Happily.

All through the night the men were moving up, Italian and big, black Askari native troops. The troops sang a song:

(Emperor Haile Selassie) we will make a little brush to polish the shoes of Benito Mussolini."

Tens of thousands of troops were on the move southward, their hobnail boots clacking on the Roman stone roads. At the air fields the roar of motors being tuned could be heard.

Asmara was a ferment of excitement. Thousands of men and women, civilians and soldiers—both nearly all soldiers—cheered above the din of bells. Searchlight beams slashed across the night.

It was almost freezing cold at the frontier, although only 15 degrees below the equator, because of the high altitude of the two countries took place in January of 1932.

Past the marching troops went rolling army trucks, labeled "To Addis Ababa."

Up moved the black Askaris, loyal to Italy, perhaps the most terrifying of all Italian troops. They were mobile arsenals. They were equipped with heavy and light machine guns, machine gunners, and their carbines, many carried revolvers and long, curved swords.

They carried their meat raw, sliced from still warm carcasses. They would rather fight than eat, are pitiless to enemies and will slaughter indiscriminately on the spot unless they kill one another on the cheek when they meet.

They comprise both Coptic Christians and Moslems. The Moslems utter a charge pause and chant in unison. "There is only one God, Allah, and Mohammed is his prophet."

Marching with the black Askaris were young fascist militiamen, the black-shirts who are Mussolini's own.

By 1932 by Longino, before he took office as chairman of the board. It was said that Johnson declared that Longino had no authority to purchase the car, for which the majority leader claimed Longino paid with his personal note in order to collect interest from the county voucher which was later issued by the county for payment.

Salary Sales Hinted.

Likewise, it was said Johnson charged Longino with lending county employees money and then requiring them to have their checks cashed at the Bank of Fulton County, of which he is president, by a clerk of the county commission. A photostatic copy of a letter but had been discussed only before a subcommittee of that body. Insanuch, however, as these charges have found their way into the hands of the press I will promptly seek release from my promise of secrecy from the chairman of the grand jury committee, H. G. King, to the end that I may properly answer these charges. In the meanwhile and pending my release from this agreement I want to assure my friends throughout the county that in due season these ridiculous charges will be answered to their entire satisfaction.

"All thinking people will appreciate that these charges—personal in nature notwithstanding that my charges have related only to the business of the public as conducted by the board of county commissioners—are nothing more than a smoke screen designed by crafty politicians to divert the attention of the people from the fundamental considerations that were so thoroughly treated by the July-August grand jury."

Longino to Reply.

Longino said late last night with respect to the charges that he and every other member of the commission agreed with the members of the grand jury committee that the matters discussed before such committee would be treated in the strictest secrecy in keeping with the uniform grand jury practices. Insanuch, however, as these confidences have been violated Longino said he felt justified in authorizing the following public statement with respect to the charges against him:

"Obviously I am not at liberty publicly to discuss charges which have not yet reached the grand jury but have been discussed only before a subcommittee of that body. Insanuch, however, as these charges have found their way into the hands of the press I will promptly seek release from my promise of secrecy from the chairman of the grand jury committee, H. G. King, to the end that I may properly answer these charges. In the meanwhile and pending my release from this agreement I want to assure my friends throughout the county that in due season these ridiculous charges will be answered to their entire satisfaction.

Champion Is Victor In Title Chess Game

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Dr. Alexander Alekhine, of Paris, world chess champion, tonight won the first game of his match in defense of his title with Dr. Max Euwe, of Amsterdam, in 30 moves.

Euwe adopted the Slav defense, but was outplayed in the middle game by the champion, who worked up a splendid attack against his opponent's king. Dr. Euwe was in time difficulties which prevented his finding the correct defense. The second game will be played on Sunday.

Duce's Son-in-Law Leader

The "horror" of the first chance at vengeance at Aduwa, a name which ranks in the Italian mind, went to Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Benito Mussolini, and commander of the attacking squadron.

As related by this official source, the Italian version of the action follows:

Ciano was leading a squadron of seven planes reconnoitering over points along the Eritrean frontier when Ethiopian riflemen began shooting at the planes. Artillery fire also burst out around the planes.

Sons Not in Squadron.

Ciano at once ordered his men toward Aduwa when his experts determined that the shell fire came from that direction. The planes dropped all their bombs on an artillery fortress in Aduwa and returned without a loss. Ethiopian losses were not determined.

Mussolini's two flying sons, Bruno and Vittorio, were on scout duty elsewhere and did not participate in the engagement.

Italy intends to carry out her program without any declaration of war because officials call it a "colonial affair." Ethiopia's general mobilization, however, was considered creating a virtual state of war, whether Emperor Haile Selassie makes a formal declaration of war or not.

Longino's office and not in the courthouse.

Payment of $4,000.

A fifth charge lodged against Longino was said to have involved a payment of $4,000 made by the Fulton commission to J. H. Longino, father of the commissioner, as attorney for the Fairburn & Atlanta Railway Co., on October 7, 1932.

It was understood, Johnson said, in effect, that a warrant was issued for the amount of $4,000 which was paid to the father of the commissioner.

The warrant was said to have been held before the actual condemnation of the two counties took place in January of 1932.

In October of the next year, it was reported, Johnson charged, George Longino introduced a resolution to pay his father the $4,000 which was paid to the father of the commissioner.

Johnson said he had then to have told the jurors that no grading had been done on this road in the last 15 years and that no records of legal indebtedness of old Campbell county were available. In the old Campbell warrant the money was to be paid from the first money received by the State Highway Department on certificate No. 265. Johnson was understood to have said that No. 265 had not been paid when the Fulton county warrant was issued.

Photostatic copies of the warrant in question and minutes of the county commission on the date the Fulton warrant was issued were understood to have been given Chairman King and his committee.

Longino to Reply.

Longino said late last night with respect to the charges that he and every other member of the commission agreed with the members of the grand jury committee that the matters discussed before such committee would be treated in the strictest secrecy in keeping with the uniform grand jury practices. Insanuch, however, as these confidences have been violated Longino said he felt justified in authorizing the following public statement with respect to the charges against him:

"Obviously I am not at liberty publicly to discuss charges which have not yet reached the grand jury but have been discussed only before a subcommittee of that body. Insanuch, however, as these charges have found their way into the hands of the press I will promptly seek release from my promise of secrecy from the chairman of the grand jury committee, H. G. King, to the end that I may properly answer these charges. In the meanwhile and pending my release from this agreement I want to assure my friends throughout the county that in due season these ridiculous charges will be answered to their entire satisfaction.

LEAGUE TO MOVE TO HALT FIGHTING

Urgent Session of Council Called for Saturday To Study Situation.

GENEVA, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The League of Nations tackled the urgent problem tonight of how to stop warfare if it failed to prevent it.

A protest from Emperor Haile Selassie, who had repeatedly expressed confidence in the League would protect Ethiopia, said Italian airplanes roared over Aduwa dropped 18 bombs, damaged the Red Cross hospital and killed civilians.

(This was officially denied by the Italian embassy in London.) Officials of the League said war between the countries was a fact, although not officially declared. Fears were expressed lest the fighting spread into Europe.

An urgent session of the full council was called for Saturday and the council's committee of 15 met this afternoon for a preliminary discussion of the situation.

A scheme to send a commission of neutral observers by air to the troubled zone was found impractical.

League Responsibility.

On the vital point of determining who is the aggressor, centered the council's gravest responsibility. A telegram from Rome convinced League officials Premier Mussolini plans to contend Ethiopia and Ethiopia only can be regarded as the aggressor.

A clear decision, officials apparently believed, would be reached on this question, regardless of what may happen. One official said:

"This is the clearest case in the whole history of the League. It is a real test of League sincerity, for if the League cannot decide clearly now, it can never hope to know its own mind in any later crisis."

The Italian telegram's reference to "bloody aggression" to which Italy has been subjected in recent decades indicated Italy will argue the war did not really begin yesterday or today, but years and years ago.

Claims of "Irritation."

British circles said Italy could justify its alleged aggression by telling the world that Italy had been subjected in recent decades to "irritation" and that Italy was justified in its measures of defense announced in Italy's telegram.

Unconfirmed information in international circles was that the League of Nations would come to the aid of France in any similar future emergency.

France, it was stated, will announce she is bound by the covenant when the covenant is put into effective operation and consequently is bound by sanctions, if they are applied.

The committee of 15 is expected shortly to submit a report to the council. It is expected to recommend that the League of Nations should take action against Italy.

Spoken for neutral countries saw in the Italian attitude a determination at least to throw doubt upon the question of guilt so as to prolong League discussions on the point long enough for Mussolini to "dig in" to Ethiopia. After that, it was argued, he would be in a stronger position to discuss peace.

Under article XII of the covenant, League officials said, neither Italy nor Ethiopia could "legally" resort to war for three months after the League made a decision on their quarrel. Violation of this article makes the offending nation subject to sanctions, as it is declared a aggressor.

Small Ethiopian outposts were reported. The "desperate" bomb squadron commanded by Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, with Vittorio Mussolini, son of the premier, as one of his pilots, has been active along the line and may have led the advance in the air. Bruno Mussolini, young son, also is in one of Ciano's squadrons.

Aduwa, where Italians were crushed in 1906, a memory which rankles here, lies only a short distance ahead. (Addis Ababa is 100 miles from Aduwa.) Aduwa was bombed by Italian planes with civilian losses.

13 COUNTY VACANCIES TO REMAIN UNFILLED

Board Votes Not To Employ New Workers as Economy Move.

Thirteen vacancies on the county pay roll will not be filled during 1935 as an economy move, it was voted yesterday by the Fulton county commission during the October meeting at which W. W. Bateman, supporter of Minority Faction Leader George F. Longino, was summarily dismissed as a deputy clerk.

Bateman, it was said, was employed as a clerk in looking after insolvent accounts at a salary of $175 per month. It was announced that his services were no longer necessary.

Ten of the vacancies exist in the public works department and another in the position of chaplain at Fulton tower, which paid $30 a month. Members of the majority faction, who voted not to hire new employees, announced, however, the economy move was in no way connected with the presentment of the July-August grand jury, in which it was recommended that a program of retrenchment be adopted.

Dr. Charles E. Adams, chairman of the board, said, in an aside, that no new equipment such as trucks and cars will be purchased before January of next year.

"Tear Up" Request. During the routine business of the meeting, which continued yesterday after a recess from Wednesday, the regular day, the majority bloc voted to "tear up and throw in the waste basket" a communication from Stratton Hard, president of the Grand Jurors' Association, which requested that the county commission adopt all the recommendations of the July-August grand jury.

Edwin F. Johnson, leader of the majority faction, introduced the resolution and was supported by Dr. Adams and Commissioner Ed L. Al-

Wiley Moore Buys First Air Scrip Book

Baxter Maddox, right, member of the board of directors of North American Aviation, Inc., of which Eastern Air Lines is the operating division, delivering to Wiley Moore, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the first aviation scrip book sold in the south. Combined with the efficiency and luxurious comfort of Eastern Air Lines' giant transports, this added feature of service to the passenger is expected to greatly increase air travel by Atlantians.

meeting, asked James L. Respass, county auditor, if the county budget is balanced and if the county is living within its income, to which Respass answered "yes." Dr. Adams then asked how much salaries have been increased this year and Johnson answered for Respass that the amount totaled about $14,500 a month, or $174,000 a year.

Not Sworn to Secrecy. Majority Leader Johnson stated to the commissioners that they were not sworn to secrecy concerning the testimony given before the special grand jury investigating committee at Wednesday's meeting, as was reported. He pointed out they were merely requested not to reveal the occurrences of the session by Chairman H. G. King. The commissioners voted also not to accept the plaster work done on Fulton tower by a contractor, the Griffin Construction Company. Dr. Adams said his inspection revealed the plaster was inferior and he introduced a resolution, which was passed, to withhold enough money from the Griffin company to cover the cost of the plastering work.

NEVILLE PREDICTS LARGER AIRPLANES

Aviation Editor, Here, Urges Wise Spending of U. S. Money for Airports.

Giant airplanes, carrying as many as 32 passengers, will come into general use provided the $11,000,000 of government money, given to airports, is spent wisely and use of airplanes for transportation increases as it has the last year, Neville, managing editor of Aviation, predicted yesterday.

Mr. Neville, here visiting officials of Delta and Eastern airlines, was en route to Birmingham to attend a conference of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. Wise methods of spending government funds and of controlling air traffic will be discussed at the conference, he said. Many airports in the United States could be moved and rebuilt better than the existing ones, he said. Methods of controlling the traffic of private planes will have to be worked out and airports will have to be built more scientifically, he said. The editor has attended several conferences of the aeronautical chamber, where these problems were discussed.

Mr. Neville said he was pleased with the layout of the airport here. He complimented airport officials for extending the field on one side.

PARALYSIS SERUM FOUND EFFECTIVE

Mayo Foundation Reports New Treatment for Children's Disease.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 3.—(AP)—A serum he said was as positive and effective in the treatment of infantile paralysis as the serum widely used in treating diphtheria was demonstrated today by Dr. E. C. Rosenow, of the Mayo Foundation, University of Minnesota, before members of the Kentucky State Medical Association. The serum, Dr. Rosenow told the assembled physicians and surgeons, is the result of 19 years of experimentation and while it does not completely solve the problem is effective when used within 48 hours after the disease is contracted.

Within that period it is as effective and positive as the serum used for diphtheria, Dr. Rosenow said.

Dr. A. T. McCormack, secretary of the Kentucky State Board of Health, commenting on the serum, said it is almost too good to be true. He said the demonstration made by Dr. Rosenow was "pretty conclusive."

"STAMPING" BY MULE BRINGS $5,000 ACTION

Alleging he was stamped on and kicked by a "gentle" mule, J. W. Burke, aged 78, filed suit for $5,000 damages yesterday in Fulton superior court against the Hudson-Couch Mule Company and J. Hamilton Couch. Burke set forth Couch told him the mule he was about to buy was gentle and harmless but that when he opened the door of the stall the animal jumped on him and walked over his face and chest. He alleged the mule was vicious and that such was known to Couch. D. K. Johnson is his lawyer.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR SOUGHT IN MISSISSIPPI

Old Age Pension Bill Also Is Introduced by Representative.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Governor Seward Collins, submitted three new subjects to an extraordinary session of the state legislature today and urged passage of relief legislation he had already submitted.

The governor proposed the creation of a state department of labor, which he said is imperative if the state is to keep in step with the rest of the nation. Such a department, he explained, would serve as a mediation agency in labor difficulties which have occurred in the state recently.

Acting on recommendations of a sub-committee of the state democratic executive committee, the chief executive proposed a corrupt practices act governing the conduct of primary elections in Mississippi to correct alleged abuses.

His recommendations were incorporated in a lengthy bill introduced in the house.

A third recommendation by the governor deals with veterans' legislation, which would provide a plan whereby veterans might purchase state-owned lands for homesteads.

Digressing from the prepared text of his message, the Governor informed the solons that the responsibility of relief legislation proposed by him Tuesday "is yours."

"Whether you want to place the burden of relief upon the counties or upon the state is for you to decide," the chief executive asserted in what was considered a reference to the Roberts relief bill introduced in the senate yesterday which would place the relief problem directly upon the counties.

"But," the Governor warned, "if we expect to obtain federal assistance, we must abide by the federal regulations. If relief money is doled out in a lump sum, then we can expect no assistance from the federal government. We must follow the restrictions and regulations laid down by the federal government."

Representative Robert Burns, of Brandon, today introduced an old age pension bill, which differs materially from relief proposals suggested by Governor Collins.

Burns' bill provides only for the aged, and makes no provision for other unemployables. His proposal would create a state welfare department headed by a director who would assume extensive powers. Under the Burns plan, the state would assume full financial responsibility of old age pensions, exclusive of federal grants.

F. D. R. WOULD BE HERO, EX-ADVISER DECLARES

Warburg Charges Roosevelt Desires Benevolent Dictatorship.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(UP)—President Roosevelt tonight was accused of being "hopelessly lost" and attempting to establish a dictatorship because he wants to be a hero. "Much as I dislike to say so, it is my honest conviction that Mr. Roosevelt has utterly lost his sense of proportion," James F. Warburg, former economic adviser to the president, wrote in his new book, "Hell Bent for Election."

"He sees himself as the one man who can save the country, as the one man who can 'save capitalism from itself,' as the one man who knows what is good for us and what is not. He sees himself as indispensable. And when a man thinks of himself as indispensable... that man is headed for disaster."

Warburg, a staunch Roosevelt supporter a year ago, attributed the President's actions to three desires: "To be a hero; to give everyone a more abundant life; to be elected."

"I believe Mr. Roosevelt fundamentally means well," Warburg said, "that he honestly sees himself as upholding the American tradition, but that he has so hopelessly lost his bearings that he does not realize what road he is on nor where it leads."

"There is the conviction that, given the widest possible range of 'positive powers'—the Rooseveltian synonym for dictatorial powers—Franklin Delano Roosevelt will be the Moses that leads his people out of the wilderness."

Roosevelt's nature, Warburg added, makes him an ideal popular candidate, but an ineffective and dangerous incumbent once he is elected.

"The President's greatest 'crime' therefore, was his almost complete repudiation of the democratic platform, Warburg said.

HOOVER TO SPEAK AT PARLEY TODAY

Leaders From 11 States Gather in Oakland for "Important" Meet.

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Western republicans gathered tonight to plan for the 1936 campaign—and to hear Herbert Hoover in his first public address before a mass gathering since leaving the White House.

Party leaders from 11 states were on hand for the rally opening tomorrow. The former President, making what is expected to be a strictly political speech, will be heard Saturday.

Hoover's address and speeches from other leaders of national note brought from convention headquarters a declaration that it will rival in importance the republican "grass roots" convention at Springfield, Ill.

Convention managers, while stressing the rally is for discussion of issues and not candidates, said it is likely Colonel Frank Knox, of Chicago; Governor Alf Landrum, of Idaho, and others regarded as potential presidential timber would be in touch with developments—at least through "listening posts."

TVA PLANS TO DEVELOP NORTHWEST ALABAMA

GUNTERVILLE, Ala., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Plans for immediate development of the Tennessee valley in northwest Alabama were announced here today by David E. Lilienthal, power director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, in an address to hundreds of citizens of this section gathered here for a TVA observance. Lilienthal said construction of a high voltage transmission line connecting Wheeler dam with the site of the Gunterville dam would be begun immediately. Construction of this line will bring TVA power into northwest Alabama, making current available for rural electrification in eight counties, he said.

DAVIS RAPS POWER ACT IN U. S. DISTRICT COURT

Former Nominee Declares Ends Sought Beyond Congress' Competency.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 3.—(AP)—John W. Davis, former democratic presidential nominee, attacked the public utility holding company act in five points in a brief filed today in United States district court.

Asserting the act attempted to regulate activities of registered holding companies, whether intrastate, and without distinguishing between the two, Davis said:

"As one reads the act, it is hard to believe the draftsman had in mind any conception of interstate commerce or the power to regulate it."

In another point, he said "the ends sought by this act are not legitimate under section 77B of the National Currency Act, and beyond the competency of congress."

Davis contended further the act is unconstitutional in its delegation of power to the Securities and Exchange Commission and argued it could not be sustained as an exercise of power conferred upon congress.

The New York attorney filed the brief in behalf of Dr. F. L. Rountree, Baltimore dentist and an intervening creditor in the test case instituted against the act by the American States Public Service Company.

The company brought the first suit against the act to determine how to proceed with its reorganization plans under section 77B of the National Currency Act. A hearing was held last week. The company's brief was filed yesterday.

EDITORS IN U. S. POSTS LAUDED BY ROUNTREE

"Unfair Innendo" Says Wrightville Publisher of Statement by Talmadge.

Characterizing the 11 Georgia newspapermen and women named by Governor Talmadge as holding federal jobs as "among Georgia's leading citizens and people who cannot be bought at any price," C. D. Rountree, former president of the Georgia Press Association and publisher and editor of the Wrightsville Headlight, declared last night he would "prattle in the strongest language at his command" the insinuations heaped upon the 11 named by the Governor, today in the business session of the Georgia Press Association to be held at Lakewood park.

"The 41 men and women named by Talmadge," Rountree said, "are people of sterling character. They are people who will not color their news columns with news that might show or tend to show anything which is not true to their convictions."

"I intend to state that the Georgia Press Association does not appreciate the stand taken by Talmadge in regard to any men or women who take federal positions."

"I contend that newspaper people have as much right to federal jobs as any other class of citizens and I speak as a man who has never held any federal job and who has never received one cent of federal money."

Rountree said he intended to introduce at tomorrow's session a resolution similar to the one offered at Carrollton, welcoming the President on behalf of the Georgia Press Association and the state to Georgia today in the chief executive's home here during his Thanksgiving holiday.

"Newspaper people of Georgia do not appreciate the innendo which has been heaped unfairly upon them by a man who has proven himself a bitter foe of the national democratic party," Rountree said.

5 LEAVE PRISON HERE FOR ALCATRAZ ISLAND

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Two Rhode Islanders and three New York men, members of the Rottich gang convicted of a $129,000 mail truck robbery in Fall River January 23, are being transferred from the federal penitentiary in Atlanta to the penitentiary on Alcatraz Island, California, according to word reaching Boston today.

United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford said he had received a letter from Warden A. C. Aderhold, of the Alcatraz penitentiary indicating the men were en route to Alcatraz, the island prison set aside by the federal government for exceptionally dangerous criminals or criminals requiring special supervision.

Picturesque Brazilian Cowboy Uses Saddle Dearer Than Horse

Colorful Characters Tell "Tall Tales" to Georgia Minister Traveling Through Jungle; Unusual Customs of Rio-Branco Indians Are Recounted.

This is the twenty-third of a series of articles on South American travel, written for The Constitution by the Rev. Henry Edward Russell, of McDonough, Ga.—Editor's Note.

CAMPINA GRANDE, Parahyba, Brazil, Aug. 21.—In the remote country is found the cowboy of north Brazil. This picturesque character has a complexion that is very nearly brown, the brown of the brown-skinned leather hat that he wears. His shirt is usually of some colorful design that has faded in the days spent in the sun and wash and shot bag hanging from his belt.

His trousers are covered with leather that reaches from the neck of the stirrup to the heels of the boots. The horses for the most part are small but very nimble-footed as they move in and out of the rocks and cactus of the region. The evidence of an over-use of the spurs is easily detected on most of the horses.

These cowboys do not carry revolvers but each has a long bladed knife hanging from his belt. The only firearm in evidence is a muzzle loading rifle or shotgun. I had soon learned that in some of the cities but I took them for antiques and didn't bother to investigate until I saw a man carrying one with his powder horn and shot bag hanging from his belt. Very obligingly one of these fellows, who stopped near the road at the approach of our car, let me handle the rifle. It was a one step ahead of the flint lock, very light, and no doubt adapted to his needs. After its discharge it will work as well as new. This is our tribute to the cowboy before we have passed.

When and if we reach Recife we will board the Great Western Railway of Brazil and ride to the end of the line at Garanhuns, Pernambuco.

As the sun was setting he felt a small mirror in his pocket which he gave to the child. Instantly the sobbing stopped and the child ran to his mother to show his prize. The mother was evidently gratified. The next morning when the missionary emerged from the quarters that had been provided for him every mother of the tribe was immediately on hand to greet him earnestly. Unfortunately the missionary had only one mirror.

We are stopped here cutting off the front of a new of Ford chassis with a cold chisel in order to weld a break made when the front springs were driven through this piece. Also the axle will have to be straightened. This chassis piece will have to be replaced with bolts and nuts and it is a matter of conjecture as to how well it will work. This is our tribute to the cowboy before we have passed.

ROOSEVELT IS SILENT ON AFRICAN SITUATION

President's Ship Halted to Allow Chief Executive to Fish in Pacific.

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ON PACIFIC, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The cruiser Houston dropped anchor at 1 p. m. (Pacific standard time), today at the southeast tip of Lower California to give President Roosevelt an afternoon of Pacific ocean fishing.

The sun shone brightly and the sea was smooth. His first morning at sea the President devoted to close scanning of reports on national and international news. Although presumably concerned chiefly with Europe's troubles, the President yesterday would avoid made it clear, and made no comment on today's developments.

He called for a small fishing boat and, during which he listened to a radio account of the World Series.

The Presidential party reached Cerros island, forbidding bleak, jutting rocks rising out of the sea, about 11 a. m. The Houston was anchored on the leeward side.

SUIT FOR $100,000 FILED BY SISK GIRL

Sheriff and Two Deputies Named as Defendants in Action Charging Beating.

Aileen Sisk, the girl who is perpetually involved with the law, filed suit for $100,000 yesterday in Fulton superior court against Sheriff James I. Lowry and Deputies R. C. McCall Jr. and John Eidson.

She charged that McCall and Eidson, as agents for the sheriff, kicked her, beat her and cursed her recently when she attempted to see her sweetheart, Marvin Honea, who is in the tower under death sentence for the murder of David A. Lord, and her brother, William Sisk, who is appealing a death sentence for the same offense.

The girl, who is herself under numerous indictments by the grand jury, charged that she sent four packages of cigars, newspapers and 30 cents in cash to the jail for her sweetheart and brother which were never delivered. She was recently indicted for assault with intent to murder Deputy Sheriff in connection with the alleged incident at the jail. She was named as plaintiff in the suit but no lawyer's name appeared on it.

LAW FATAL TO LONG IS ENFORCED BY ALLEN

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 3.—(AP)—The late Huey Long's state administration today put into effect one of the laws believed responsible, in part, for the senator's assassination.

The act, passed at the special session of the legislature during which Long was shot, gerrymanders the district of Judge R. H. Pavy, father-in-law of Dr. Carl Austin Weiss, Long's assassin.

Governor O. K. Allen today appointed J. Cleveland Fruge and E. Herman Guillory judge and district attorney, respectively, of the new district composed only of Evangeline parish. The old district was composed of Evangeline and St. Landry parishes.

Judge Pavy will continue as a judge in a district composed of Acadia, Lafayette, Vermilion and St. Landry parishes, where Long's political strength was regarded as strong.

Famous Style Artists Attract Attention.

Last-minute in shoes for men as featured in Esquire are displayed in an attractive window at Hanan's, 170 Peachtree street, with a number of original paintings and drawings from the popular magazine.

Esquire has taken its place as the leading fashion authority for men and many of the shoe styles featured in the magazine are now being shown by Hanan's in New York, London and Paris, as well as in the Atlanta store.

One of the most important new fashion notes for fall is the heavy, brogue type shoe in such leathers as Scotch grain, leather grain, reversed calf skins and aquatulle veil.

The drawings and paintings on display were done by some of the most famous contributors to Esquire and are attracting a great deal of attention and comment.

Published as a special feature submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name and its contents will be kept confidential, save The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: My brother has three boys who are without a doubt exceptional children. They never get into any trouble outside their own home. The two younger ones have scraps and frequently wind up in a fist fight. For this my brother punishes them by slapping them severely but to no avail. I am sure boys of 12 and 14 are subject to reason. There must be something wrong with the discipline when they continue to do the thing if which they are disciplined. I am afraid the children will be resentful toward my brother and that they will come to hate him. I know that a father needs the love and respect of his children more and more as he grows older. Please discuss this, SISTER.

Answer: You are making a mountain out of a molehill, dear lady. There was never a normal boy who didn't scrap occasionally. If he hasn't a brother to scrap with, he mixes with a neighbor. The average parent is never worried about his son's fighting propensities but he is worried if his son won't fight. They are little animals, you know, boys of 12 and 14, with animal propensities to eat and fight and avoid both. They are seldom resentful of punishment except when they are entirely innocent of wrongdoing and there are some people who yet contend that pretty effective punishment is at the end of the rod.

However, nobody agrees that a parent has the right to punish a child by slapping him in the face. There is something humiliating to a child in feeling the flesh of his father's hand in contact with his face. Such humiliation makes a child resentful, puts murder in his heart, though his size may make him powerless to express it. Any value in the punishment is lost in the indignation that is aroused. He forgets what he has done, forgets what the punishment is for in the burning desire to strike back.

The modern recommendation of controlling them, but most people have to get pretty well up in years before they can be reasoned out of losing their temper. First fights among young boys are merely temper explosions and it will be a long time before they can be reasoned out of scrapping for scrapping is one of the stages of boyhood and it usually passes with dirty fingernails and cat-clawed crowns.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Are respect and admiration for a man and belief that he will make a good husband reason for a woman's marrying him? Or is it necessary for her to feel the thrills of love? PERPLEXED.

Answer: Is she up in years? Has she reason to believe that this is the last marriage? Does she want to get married? If the answers are affirmative, yes, respect and admiration, belief that he will make a good husband are good enough reasons for her marrying him. Love's thrills are fleeting. Marriage must have something more nourishing than electricity to feed on, if it is to last. "A good provider" as our grandmothers used to call the men who brought home plenty of good quality bacon, is a handy man to have around the house.

Is she young? Does she look wistfully into the eyes of the respected one, straining to see the image of the prince? Has she dreamed of moonlight and roses, the magic touch and the quickened pulse? If the answers are affirmative then, no, she shouldn't marry him. Having a husband whom she respects and admires won't satisfy that heart hunger for romance. No man is a good provider for her unless he can provide the thing she hungers for and all her life long she will be as ever hungry human being is: discontented, disgruntled, disappointed and potentially dangerous. For some day the image of her prince will take human form and the frustrated longing for romance may assume proportions too great for her to cope with.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Letters unsuitable for publication will be answered personally provided they contain stamped, self-addressed envelope. All names are held in confidence. SMART DRESS FOR LARGER FIGURES.

What a lovely feeling getting into a new woolen dress on crisp fall days. This season they seem to be smarter than ever.

Today's model is a charming style for women of fuller figure, for it has slenderizing qualities with its V-neck, jabot collar and bias seams across the hips.

The original was in dark plum lightweight woolen with matching tone lustrous trim.

The two surfaces of black satin back crepe would work out beautifully in this easily made model.

Black woollike silk crepe with white satin collar is also a very smart scheme for it.

Style No. 448 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material with 7-8 yard of 39-inch contrasting for three-quarter sleeve dress.

Things that Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Glenda Farrell)

A Fine Shampoo and a Treatment for Very Dry Hair

By MIGNON.

Dry hair is never beautiful, but there is always something that you can do about it. For instance: Wash your hair with a good shampoo of one kind or another. Some women melt soap to the consistency that pours nicely, using distilled water. Some want a liquid shampoo in a bottle and right here I want to tell you of one of the best I have ever used. It is easy to handle, quick in its work and does a very thorough job of cleaning.

Now when your hair is cleaned with this shampoo you rinse it with warm water. I think cold water takes something out of your hair and makes it much less attractive. You don't need either a vinegar or lemon rinse with this liquid shampoo.

While your hair is still damp rub your scalp to stir the circulation.

Then brush it with a fresh clean brush. Brushes should be washed often and dried in the sun or kept in a sterilizer if you are lucky enough to own such a thing, which most women are not.

Next take a bottle of a splendid brilliantine made by people who make it their business to manufacture only very fine articles. Pour a bit on the palm of one hand, then rub both palms together so they will be well oiled. Then run your palms over the hair, being particular to rub the dry ends of the hair between the palms. The hair always seems dryer at the ends.

If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon at The Constitution. Please do not write unless you live outside the city, in which case enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Paradise Jelly and Peach and Orange Conserve Are Now Made.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

The twine was behaving themselves really in admirable fashion. The new formula for the foods seemed to have turned the trick, that and the absolutely rigid routine that Eleanor was following. Perhaps it was the fact that here she was mother of twins, adored by her husband, settled in a satisfactory house that turned her attention to paradise jelly. She was so happy that she felt at times as if she were in a dream. The jelly was made by her own hands and she had been so neglected. She had to depend on friends for the current jelly, the grape and the raspberry jam. But she could make her own peach conserve and her own apple, cranberry and jelly. First she made the orange and peach conserve. Here is the recipe. It was an old family favorite. She washed and peeled 12 peaches. She did the same with six oranges. Then she peeled the peaches and cut the pulp into small pieces. She removed any seeds or bits of rind from oranges and cut the pulp into small bits. She put in one cup of sugar for every cup of fruit and let the mixture stand overnight. Next morning she stirred the mixture for ten minutes. Then she paradise jelly is the one with the perfectly beautiful color. It calls for ten medium size quinces, 20 medium size apples, one quart cranberry and sugar. The quinces are peeled and cut into pieces. They are not cored. They are cooked with the sliced but not peeled apples and the cranberries that have been picked over. Water to cover is added and the mixture cooked until they are soft. They are put in a moistened jelly bag and the juice allowed to drip. It is measured and boiled for 12 minutes. An amount of sugar equal to the original measure of juice is added and the two are cooked until a test mixture jells. Then it is poured into clean hot jars and covered with paraffin. Next day a second layer of paraffin is added. And the paradise jelly is made.

Earl Blackwell Enjoys Treasure Hunt at Mary Pickford's Home

By Sally Forth.

ONE of the most interesting experiences Earl Blackwell, that popular erstwhile Atlanta and one of Sally's favorite people, has had in Hollywood, Cal., was a treasure hunt at Pickford, the gorgeous home of Mary Pickford, and one of the show places of the movie capital. Earl, you know, is back home for a brief visit to his parents, the senior Earl Blackwells, who have just returned here for residence, to the delight of a host of Atlanta friends.

Earl admitted that one of his secret ambitions had always been to explore Pickford. And then came the coveted invitation to do just that. Gwyn Pickford, Mary's lovely young adopted daughter, was on the phone. "Earl, will you come out for a treasure hunt tonight? Mary is in California for two weeks, and the whole place is ours."

The hunt was confined strictly to the house. A blond hairpin was one of the objects demanded, so that, of course, led Earl to Mary's boudoir. And what fun it was to rummage in the girl's house, the star's dressing table! Another object was sought in the Chinese room. Groping around in the dark for a light switch, Earl pressed against a panel which immediately gave way to his touch and flooded the room with light. As the panel turned in the wall, the back of it revealed a gorgeous array of evening gowns, the clever chateau having devised this novel way of concealing her enormous wardrobe. After that Earl went around pushing on all the panels. One revealed all of Mary's fur coats, another a huge array of shoes.

The attic on the third floor was one of the most interesting places to Earl. The long room, running the length of the house, was flanked on either side by a series of windows. Between the windows was a row of cabinets, each holding one of the elaborate costumes worn by Mary or her former husband, Douglas Fairbanks, in the pictures made by the famous pair. A throng of Hollywood's younger set attended Gwyn's party, but it was Earl who walked away with the prize.

Earl also told Sally about the grand birthday party that Claudette Colbert gave last week for Elizabeth Wilson, another Atlanta who has made good in Hollywood. The party was a dinner at Claudette's beautiful new French Normandy house at Bellair. Among the guests were Walter Lang, the well-known director; Harriet Parsons, Carole Lombard, who is one of Elizabeth's best friends, and Carole's beloved secretary, Madeline Fields, whom she calls "Fieldie."

Elizabeth's gift from her hostess was a lovely brown suede bag, and she received a perfect array of other gifts. According to Earl, Elizabeth is as much in demand in Hollywood as the most popular star.

SHE is a pretty brunette, has never made her debut, but has been a popular member of the younger set since her school days at Washington Seminary. A lovely hostess, she frequently has attractive visitors from nearby towns as her guests.

Turn about is fair play, so one visitor had the lovely Atlanta as her guest in a nearby city. The former, it seems, has an attractive brother who immediately fell for his sister's pretty guest. And so much so that she now has a beautiful engagement ring and the wedding is planned for some time during the Christmas holidays.

AMONG Atlanta's representatives at the King-Smith studio in the national capital is Charlotte Sage. The attractive schoolgirl daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Dan Y. Sage left yesterday for Washington. Charlotte will specialize in the study of fashion illustration at this prominent art school. Since Charlotte has shown an aptness for drawing, when enrolled at Washington Seminary, from where she graduated last June, she studied art. Her drawings showed unusual originality as well as an artistic sense of line and color. Along with her art studies at King-Smith, Charlotte will also enroll in the French, English and history classes.

For recreation she has selected horseback riding, as this is her favorite sport. She will not be able to ride for several weeks because of a recent appendix operation. Early November will, no doubt, find the youthful Atlanta cantering her mount through the meadow trails bounding in the district's park. Although Charlotte has not been informed of her parents' plans, Sally hears that a year at the Paris branch of King-Smith studio will complete her education, following a year's study at the Washington school.

DOTTED LINE HONEYMOON

By JOSEPH McCORD

WHAT WAS BEFORE. Larry Cutter falls in love at first sight with Jacqueline Anthony, public stenographer at the Hotel Baymont, who longs to travel. Larry, who has traveled much, roughed it and struck gold, starts her by saying she can realize her ambition by marrying him. He presents a contract providing that he shall care for her always but that she may continue living as she is until she is satisfied with her bargain. Jack signs it, he gives her $10,000 in United States bonds and they are married two days later. She accounts to herself for her action by the fact that she has lost her savings in the stock market; also that she is truly the daughter of Vincent Anthony, inventor and rover whom after her mother's death she had supported until recently when she refused to further finance his experiments. He disappeared. Jack doesn't see Larry for two days after the wedding. Detective Staples tells her she has been asked to watch Larry just as she finds Vince, ill and requiring an operation. She warns Larry by anonymous letter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"But you haven't told me how he happened to drag me into yesterday's teasing expedition."

"Don't you see? He figured, if you had been staying at the Baymont, you might have dictated letters to me and—"

"And you weren't able to tell him what they were about. That's where our hero ran into a stone wall."

Jacqueline tried to see the expression of Larry's face, but the darkness concealed it from her.

"When he described you, she admitted quietly, 'I did remember that you had given me several business letters. And that was all I did tell him.'"

"As if you had told me! I'm yearning to hear the rest of his story, but I'm not going to ask you for it."

Jacqueline found herself in a fresh quandary now. She had somehow dreaded this interview. It had been quite impossible to down the suspicions in her mind, hateful as they were. She knew that her attitude toward Larry should be one of cool resentment until he had made an explanation. He should be very grateful to her and give her the assurance she so much needed. He must.

But now she must have succumbed again to the spell his presence seemed always to exert. Worst of all, she didn't care.

Vince's welfare seemed the only real important thing in the world just now. If anything should go wrong tomorrow—Larry's quick sympathy and desire to be of help had touched her strangely. His very nearness brought comfort. . . . He was so big and dependable.

Her pride would not let her demand an explanation. After all, did Larry owe her that? Their association was no more than a matter of business. It had been tacitly agreed that their former lives were private affairs. Larry had lived up to his bargain in every particular. She would do the same. Only—

Larry broke the silence. "Look here, Jack, I don't know whether that gum-shoe gave you a bum steer on purpose or not. I was rather looking for something like that to happen, but I didn't think you'd be worried with it. I told you that fate was in all this, and you've helped me a lot tonight. That's all I'm going to say because you've got troubles enough of your own tonight without packing any on my account. I don't want you to be bothered with my affairs. So let's forget it. Could you eat anything, provided we can find any place that looks inviting?"

"Oh, no."

"I guess that does sound rather material," he laughed. "But I'm trying so hard to forget two years of salt pork and beans that I don't overlook any chances. That chicken you fixed still stands out as one of the bright spots in my life."

"You should tell that to the delicatessen man and . . . I think, perhaps, we should turn back now. It's getting late."

"Whatever her highness commands."

Nothing was said after that until Larry slowed at a busy intersection a mile from downtown street. Jacqueline laid her hand suddenly on his arm.

"I think you'd better let me out here. I can take a car."

"Why?"

"I just happened to remember—"

"Nonsense! There's no danger of that. I'll see you home, of course."

A few squares from the apartment house, Larry said quietly, "Don't worry about tomorrow, Jack. I'm going over to the hospital and stick around until it's over. Just as soon as I get definite word, I'll give you a ring. You can depend on me."

"Thank you."

"Righto!" He brought the car to a quick halt in front of number 980 Union's street. Ray.

Jacqueline never forgot the long hours of that next morning. Fortunately, she was quite busy. But it did not keep her thoughts from straying constantly to the hospital and wondering how her father had come out of the operation.

When Larry finally called at 1:30, her hands were shaking so that she scarcely could hold the receiver to her ear. Larry's voice was quiet and reassuring.

"Everything's fine."

"Oh. Are you sure?"

"Perfectly. I've just talked to Dr. Kennedy himself. No complications, he tells me. Nothing to worry about, so far. I guess you thought I had forgotten you. But you see, an operation is like a procession. They never start on time."

Larry did not see fit to tell her that Kennedy had added he had found Anthony's condition somewhat more involved than he had thought and that the operation was long and tedious. But successful.

"I'm so glad! And—"

"much obliged," said a choked little voice at the other end of the wire.

"Glad to be of service. By the way, the doctor thinks your dad will be able to see you after dinner."

"I'll go to him as soon as I can."

"Fine. Good-bye."

It was not until she had her first glimpse of Vince that the girl realized what an ordeal her father had been through. His face was pinched and very nearly as white as the pillow.

Jacqueline leaned over him and placed her hand on his forehead.

"Vince," she whispered softly. His eyes opened slowly and looked up into her anxious face. "Hello, Skipper," he whispered childishly. "They hurt me."

"I know, dear. But you're all right now. And you mustn't talk. All you have to do now is to rest and get well and strong. Try to sleep. The nurse says if we're good, I may sit by you for a while."

Vince nodded and closed his eyes again.

For more than an hour, Jacqueline sat motionless in a chair close beside the bed holding her father's thin hand. Watching him as he slept.

Her relief was unspeakable, but already she was face to face with a problem that must be solved within a short time. What must she do when Vince left the hospital? She could not take him home with her to her little apartment, and he could not go back to that dreadful room in Elder street. He would need care for a long time, perhaps. How could she manage that? And there was all this expense. Dr. Kennedy's bill.

The cash from that bond presented only a temporary solution. It was merely a loan. And that reminded her. . . . Vince's second week was up. She would settle that on her way out; that would be one less worry.

It proved to be one more. The clerk at the cashier's window thumbed hastily through a file and extracted a card.

"This account was settled today."

and an advance of one week paid on the room."

"I think there is some mistake," Jacqueline said firmly.

"If I don't believe so . . . Oh, just a moment, Miss Anthony. This envelope was left with me when I came on duty. I believe it is your receipt." There were two pieces of paper in the envelope. One was a statement from the hospital, including the operation expense and a week's additional rental for Vince's room. A rubber stamp indicated the account was paid. Dated today.

The other appeared to be a leaf torn from a memorandum book, scrawled over with a man's handwriting.

"Received from Miss Jacqueline Anthony, even date, the sum of two hundred dollars ($200.00). Account in full."

"Thank you."

"Erasmus Kennedy, M. D."

Larry, of course.

Jacqueline stuffed the receipts into her bag and left the building. She would walk home tonight, think this over.

Her first reaction was a hot resentment. Larry had no right to place her under obligation to do what it had been her own choice to do. There was a chance to swallow all her pride. All this involving her more deeply in . . .

In what?

Perhaps Larry meant only to be kind. But this hurt. . . . she gave a little gasp of consternation. It hadn't occurred to her before. If she insisted upon paying those bills, she would be forced to do it . . . with Larry's money!

How could she ever have become entangled in such a net of circumstances? But she would have this out. Larry had the very first time there was a chance to talk to him. He must understand that she couldn't go on. Accepting always accepting. . . . And all in the shadow of a grim fear that hovered over her hourly.

If only, Staples never had come near her! On the other hand . . . then she couldn't have warned Larry. Had Staples told her the truth? If he did, then Larry had some enemy. And he had been so cool about it all. Why couldn't he have said . . .

Jacqueline gave up the puzzle with a tragic little groan that was very nearly a sob.

Unfortunately for her peace of mind, there was no sign of the errand. Larry Cutter during the ensuing days. It seemed scarcely possible that he would have left town without getting some word to his wife. Unless he had left very suddenly.

Then Lieutenant Staples banished that suspicion by thrusting his head into the office one afternoon to inquire glibly. "Any news, partner?"

She shook her head smilingly and the detective stroled on. . . . Larry still was in the city. Perhaps he didn't like to face her account of Vince's bills. Perhaps he expected her to call him and express her gratitude. He should know better than to expect her to try to get in touch with him under the circumstances. He might be in hiding, for all she knew. . . .

But you would think he would be sufficiently interested to want to hear about Vince, how nicely he was getting along now.

SWIMMING IN SALT WATER IS NOT BENEFICIAL FOR COLDS

Swimming is always dangerous when one has a cold, doctors say—be it in fresh or salt water. Infections are driven up the eustachian canal from the throat to the middle ear and may result in impaired hearing, due to inflammation of the middle ear. Persons suffering from infected ears may also transmit this to other persons bathing in the same pool. (Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution.)

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

ADVENTURES OF HENRY HUDSON.

V—End of the Last Voyage.

A winter in frozen seas! It was not a pleasant thing to think about. The "Discovery" was in the southern part of Hudson bay, but even so it was in a far northern place. The days were short, and the nights were long. The air was cold, bitterly cold. There was food aboard the vessel, enough to last five or six months on short rations; but not enough to make the men feel that they could live through the winter and then have enough to feed them during the long journey back to England.

From time to time, sailors crossed the ice and made their way ashore. They shot wild fowl and other game, and this helped make the food supply last.

Hudson's route on his last trip.

There was a forest near the shore, and from it the sailors obtained wood. Stone fireplaces were set up on the ship's deck, and burning wood served to warm their chilled bodies.

Through the winter they lived, through the long, cold winter.

Near the beginning of spring, a lone Indian came to the "Discovery," pulling a load of furs on a toboggan. He traded the furs for what trinkets the white men would give him; and then went away, with the promise that he would return another day.

The ice began to break up, and a shallow, or small shoal, was built for use until the "Discovery" could get free.

There was land to the south, to the east and to the west. The only free passage was northward. Plans were made for a return journey to England, and the "Discovery" did at last sail for England—but without the captain.

There had been quarrels among the sailors, and between the captain and certain of the seamen. The first mate had lost his position, and another had been given his place. There was fear that the food aboard was not enough for the return journey.

Hudson seems to have been willing to go back to England; but there may have been fear that they would change his mind after getting out of James bay, and order a westward turn—to try again what seemed a wild chase for the South sea.

At any event, Hudson was bound and placed aboard the shallow with half the crew, some of them sick men. The rest sailed away, but only a few reached England alive. In England those few were put in prison because of what they had done to their captain.

What happened to Hudson and the men with him, we do not know. They never again were seen by white men. We may never know that they went ashore, and found an Indian or Eskimo village where they could live at peace.

Indians Rally to Beat Crackers in Weird 10-Inning Game

JACKETS HOLD LIGHT WORKOUT FOR TIGER GAME

Alex Bans Rough Work for Fear of More Injuries.

By Jack Troy.

The head man at the Flats regretted that Tech could scrimmage only once in preparation for the Sewanee game Saturday at Grant field.

"But we can't take any more chances," said Coach W. A. Alexander yesterday. "There's Bud Lindsay, for instance. He has a painful charley horse. Charley Preston has an infected foot. And, of course, Captain Lefty Eubanks has a bad knee and won't be able to play."

Eubanks, Lindsay and Preston reported in track training suits yesterday and worked out lightly. Only Eubanks, however, will be held out of the game.

So, as on Wednesday, Coach Alex barred scrimmage and stressed signal drill and punting and passing.

HAYS TO START.

"I haven't made any declaration as to starting an all-sophomore backfield Saturday," Alex said. "I expect Lawrence Hays will be in there at quarterback for the kick-off. The rest of the backfield will be composed of sophomores."

It has developed that Fulton Brittain, either a tackle or a guard, will be available for play Saturday. The big blond charger has recovered from a back injury.

Coach Mack Tharpe's idea of making the line men charge up and down the bank at the Rose Bowl has resulted in increased stamina and stronger leg drive. The line men started doing this exercise 10 times and now it has been increased to 40 times daily.

BACKS OKAY.

The jacket backs, outside of John McKinley, who has an injured leg, are in good condition. Dutch Konemann, Fletcher Sims and Harry Appleby are expected to start with Lawrence Hays Saturday. Scrapper Edwards soon will be sent into the fray, according to plans.

Bud Lindsay will start at right tackle, with Phil Chance going in at left tackle in Lindsay's place. The remainder of the line will be the same, with Ed Jones and Hoot Gibson, alternate-captain, at end; John Wilcox and Mit Fitzsimmons at tackles, and Charley Preston at center.

They way things are looking at left will depend on how the reserves perform Saturday against the battling Sewanee Tigers. Especially in the line, Roberts and Roney will get a real chance at tackles, likely as not, and Red Collins may be called upon early in the game.

BRIDGES

Thomasville Opens Grid Season Today

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 3.—

Starting one week later than the original schedule anticipated, the Thomasville Bulldogs will open their 1935 gridiron season here Friday afternoon with the Camilla Panthers from the Mitchell county capital furnishing the opposition. The game will be played at the local stadium.

CUBS ARE TOUGH ON HOME FIELD, SAYS GRANT RICE

Just as Easy To Beat as Roulette or Lawson Little.

By Grantland Rice.

(Copyright, 1935, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—The sixth glacial period moved in on top of the World Series, and the Tigers pulled the smartest trick of the year. They turned into polar bears, clawed the hide off the frozen Cubs and moved into Chicago on even terms. The score was 8-3. Their main job now will be stopping the Cubs on their own turf, where they haven't lost a ball game for a month.

The Cubs were smoking hot until the arctic circle fell on their necks in the second battle, and the wind that roared in from the barren lands removed all the steam from their systems in about 10 minutes.

It might be suggested here that Tiger bats and going fello by the name of Tommy Bridges, from Gordonsville, Tenn., also figured in the day's results.

Outside of the bitter, blasting gale that blew fly balls all over the lot and slipped incipient pneumonia to 47,000 customers, the second contest had one distinct feature. This feature had a direct connection with the punching power in Tiger bats. In the first game, if you care to go back that far, Lon Warneke turned these famous bats into chess straws. But in the second game, the same set of bats won the ball game before a man was out. This may be a World Series record. At least it should be. Bats on bludgeons that were as silent as the grave only a day ago suddenly turned on the expected thunder at the expense of Charlie Root, a veteran, who had no liking at all for a winter wind that apparently turned his right arm into an icicle.

FOUR HITS, FOUR RUNS.

Before Root started for the warmth and shelter of the clubhouse, the first four Tigers moving up to the plate had nailed him for four hits and four runs.

White singled and Cochrane doubled, Gehrigger singled and Hank Greenberg fired a home run into the left-field bleachers. There was the ball game over and nobody out. The smart move here would have been to call off the game, award it to the Tigers, and possibly shake off some 10,000 cases of pneumonia.

There was nothing to it of the rest of the route. The unbleached Tiger attack drove Roy Root, the general, 8 to 3. The direction of Charlie Root in the fourth with a three-run attack that left the score 7 to 0. If there had been any doubt about the final result, this was the clinching turn. Up through the fourth inning, Bridges, the Tennessee rifleman, had the Cubs stopped with one hit, a solid blow from the 38th ounce mace that Gabby Hartnett swung.

With that seven-run lead, Bridges put on the wraps and pulled up. He had the Cubs in a cage and he merely kept the door locked for the rest of the route. Later on, Charlie Grimm sent in Kowalki, who held the Tigers to a run as the game finished, 8 to 3.

But anything that happened after the first Tiger blast was nothing but a wasted gesture. There were the four runs and there was Tommy Bridges and there was the ball game.

From that point on, it was largely a matter of how much punishment the 47,000 customers could take.

THE TIGERS' PROBLEM.

Moving into Chicago for three games, the Tigers face one of the main problems of baseball. This has to be the job of beating the Cubs at home.

The Cubs at home have been just about as easy to beat as a roulette wheel, or Lawson Little in an amateur golf championship. Even when they are going nowhere, they are still tougher than rawhide on the old home field. Once they sent the fragrant odor of home cooking, they turn into head hunters.

They have Bill Lee, ready to face Elden Auker, and if Lee steps under the ax, they have Lon Warneke ready to work on Saturday.

By a strange turn of circumstances.

LEAGUE FIELD, OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 3.—Is this a matter for the squirrel cage or not?

It happened tonight. In the first inning of the 1935 Dixie Series. And not, as one might suspect, in the diamond ball game between the sophomore and junior class teams at the school picnic.

The Crackers started a brisk rally in the first inning. Hill and Hooks singled in succession and with the aid of an error on Hooks' hit, Hill scored and Hooks went to third.

And then Joe Hutcheson belted a long fly ball to left and Hooks scored, hurting his ankle in a slide. But two runs were in.

But then came Bert Niehoff, grinning. Eddie Moore, the Cracker manager, had given the lineup incorrectly through some inadvertent slip. Harris had been placed ahead of Hutcheson.

So Harris, who hadn't batted, was out. And Hooks was sent back to third. And Hutcheson had to bat again. He rolled out to end the inning. Our nine had one run instead of two.

The Indians came to bat. Jim Keesey was up with two men on base. He had a strike called on him.

Eddie Moore came in. And so help us all if Bert Niehoff hadn't put his list down incorrectly and Keesey was batting out of turn.

But Eddie Moore had called the error too soon. Had he waited until the man had completed his time at bat there would have been an automatic out. As it was the correct batter, Easterling, was substituted with one strike on him.

If there were error columns for managers that first inning would have seen Eddie Moore with two and Bert Niehoff with one. All in all, it was very, very weird.

CRICKET IN OKLAHOMA CITY.

It may not be cricket to mention the fact, being a guest in this town, but there is a cricket plague on here.

Each night at the ball park there are thousands and millions of crickets who dash themselves to death against the lights over the diamond. I suppose this is a living and breathing moral lesson about the futility and the tragedy of sticking around the bright lights, but no one seems to realize it.

There are literally millions of crickets in the town. The boys tell me they are not so bad now and that a month ago they covered the sides of the buildings. They are big fellows and the serenade, when they get started, is rather good. There is something of Bach and Wagner and also of Chopin in their threnodies and nocturnes.

They turn up at the most unusual places. They may land right in the soup at dinner or do a three-point landing right in the butter. This morning your correspondent was having his morning tub when three crickets of the hydroplane type landed in the water. We all four had a jolly bath together. This is a very democratic state and to refuse to bathe with two or three crickets would immediately stamp one as a boor.

There is no explanation of the plague and no one seems to worry about it. So why should I, a visitor in the town, comment? One merely reports.

THE STARS AND THE BARS.

There is a Confederate veterans' convention on here and they are stopping at the same hotel where your noble Crackers are resting.

Just this afternoon your correspondent met with Mr. Jarrett Todd, of Greer county, Oklahoma. In no time at all Mr. Todd and your correspondent were marching under the Stars and Bars.

"We officers are not permitted to talk politics," said Mr. Todd, who entered the Civil War at the age of 14, "but I will say this: The republican party hasn't got a leg to stand on. It entered the war with one purpose. It managed to accomplish that by superior forces, but I ask you, has it any reason for existence?"

"Mr. Todd," said your correspondent, "I am not permitted to write of matters political, but you are exactly right about the republican party." So Mr. Todd and I got on famously.

He refused to surrender after the war but went off to Mexico to fight there. He and his friends took along some cannon, two of them, and some other implements of war. At the border at Eagle Pass, Texas, where the Alabama football player was removed from the train and operated upon last fall en route to the Rose Bowl game, Mr. Todd and his friends sold the cannon to the Mexicans and then went on across to join up.

Later on they went to Brazil, and finally Mr. Todd came back to this country and surrendered some years after the war. One of his best friends of that day was a man who had been severely wounded at the Battle of Atlanta and who had never recovered. The last Mr. Todd saw of him was in St. Louis in 1866.

Mr. Todd knew Sam Houston, the raven, and his son. He settled in Greer county, thinking it was in Texas, but a law suit between the states fixed it in Oklahoma.

Mr. Todd remembers John B. Gordon, of Georgia, and his face lighted up when I mentioned the fact I was employed by The Atlanta Constitution. "I've read many a copy of it in the days after the war," he said. "That fellow Henry Grady was a writer and a speaker."

Well, anyhow, despite the fact we could not speak of politics, Mr. Todd and I mentioned the republican party in a very scurrilous manner a few more times and parted friends.

Mr. Todd wanted to see the Crackers play but the night air was a little too much for him. He preferred to sit in the lobby and explain to everyone that while an officer of the Confederate Veterans he could not talk politics, he thought all republicans were pretty bad.

SPEAKING OF BASEBALL.

Our noble lads from Ponce de Leon park seem to have lost their zing. The zing that carried them through to a pennant is gone. The zing that smashed Nashville and New Orleans is conspicuous by its absence.

Eddie Moore, the manager who gave Atlanta its first pennant in 10 years, has developed a streak of stubbornness about removing pitchers when they are being routed and that has hurt the morale of the club. The players were very low after Durham's bombardment of Wednesday evening, when he was left in the box until 13 hits and 8 runs had been made off his delivery.

Meanwhile, Oklahoma City is being very, very nice. This afternoon the players were the guests of Mr. "Red" Mozier, the city manager. Mr. Mozier was born on an Indian reservation. He has played and coached football, has served as a cowboy, soldier, and flies his own plane.

He took the players out to see oil wells at close range. In fact, right into the derricks where the black gold flows.

And he showed them the sights around town. The oil wells are right in town. They say the stream of oil flows right through the city and some day they may even give up and dig wells in the streets.

It was quite an afternoon. They are very hospitable people, these Oklahomans, most of whom are descendants of Georgians, Tennesseans or Kentuckians.

MOORE'S ERROR IN HIS LINEUP COSTS THE GAME

Atlanta Loses Run in First; Hooks Hurts His Ankle.

By Ralph McGill.

runs were being scored in one inning, the fourth.

And finally it was Jim Lindsey, coming in cold in the ninth and on a cold, windy night, who received credit for losing the game. Which fact is a travesty on justice.

Thomas wobbled all the way and in the ninth when two successive singles, and an error were made, Lindsey was hurried into the box. A single scored the two men to tie the score.

The Crackers were stopped by the Indians' fourth pitcher of the evening, Marleau, Evans and Stieley having come and gone when Charley Moncrief came on in the tenth.

Ray Flood, hitless all evening, drove a triple to right field to open the Indians' half of the tenth. Easterling and Keesey, hard hitters, were walked but Young's slow grounder could not be fielded in time to get Flood at the plate.

RALLY IN SEVENTH.

The feature was the Cracker rally in the seventh. They had been upset by that unusual mistake in the first inning. They had had pitching. But they didn't quit. They kept trying and that seventh inning rally was a great one. It was a cruel test of fate and it was so far from behind and go out in front only to lose. But they pay off on runs. The Indians had one more than the Crackers.

Tomorrow night's game will end Harry Kelley in there for the Crackers with Long John Niggeling, the pitcher who beat Atlanta in the opening game in Atlanta, working for the Indians. If Atlanta wins the scene moves back to Ponce de Leon park Sunday. If the Indians win, they will have won the series.

Eddie Moore, in explaining his error in putting down his batting order, said he was bothered by a number of people talking to him as he wrote. He mistakenly thought that the Indians, if Atlanta wins, the scene moves back to Ponce de Leon park Sunday. If the Indians win, they will have won the series.

HOOKS IS INJURED.

The Crackers may have lost Alex Hooks for the final game here. He hurt an ankle when sliding into home in the first inning. He will be out of the run that was nullified by the error in the batting order. If so the error was even more costly than the loss of tonight's game.

The Crackers got 12 hits for 13 for the Indians. The Indians used 15 men, including a pinch runner.

Among the visitors tonight were Carl Hubbell, the Giants' great pitcher. He is an Oklahoma boy. The Indians won the first game at Atlanta and lost the second. They have won two here.

That first inning, of course, was a very sad commentary on what is supposed to be the best baseball series in Dixie, involving the solid south's champion and the champion of the southwest.

BOTH WRONG.

Both Manager Bert Niehoff, of the Indians, and Eddie Moore, of the Crackers, handed in errors in the batting order. Niehoff called the error on the Crackers after Hutcheson had batted his time at bat and it cost the Crackers a run. Moore called Niehoff's error before the time at bat was completed and the batters were changed. Easterling merely taking a strike which had been called on Keesey.

It was a mental lapse on the part of both managers. Niehoff scored on a hit by Hooks and an error. Hill had singled. Hooks, who scored on a fly ball, was sent back when the batting order was discovered.

The Indians, taking advantage of a demoralized Atlanta team, scored three in their half of the first. Bill Schmidt, who walked, and Bill Evans, who scored, plus a single and an infield out, got across three runs.

The Indians knocked Schmidt out of the second. A triple and a double doing it. Bill Thomas held them to the one.

When Doc was unsuccessful in his first attempt to talk to the savage chieftain, he suddenly brightened and tried again. "Hey, parley you zong glaze?" Doc began to laugh heartily. "What's so funny?" Doc demanded. "Your French," the other lad replied with a chuckle.

"I must be improving," said Doc; "nobody ever recognized my French as before." "Your friend doesn't even recognize it as speech," said Dick; "why don't you make signs?" "That's a great idea," the American lad responded. "Here goes! Now watch me!"

Doc waved his hand to attract the chief's attention. "Look here! Doc Rain Cloud." Then the boy attempted to describe their plight in sign language. Finally he pointed in the direction he thought the railway lay and laboriously imitated a locomotive—"Choo! Choo! Choo!"

The chief stared at him, then tapped his forehead significantly with a forefinger. "He thinks you're crazy, and he's not far wrong," observed Dick. "I'll get a rise out of him yet," Doc announced. And then he made an innocent error which had vast and terrifying consequences!

Satiric Notes on 'Arts Feminine' Found in Letter by 'Jeb' Stuart

A letter in which General J. E. B. original documents of General P. M. Stuart, Civil War hero, wrote face-B. Young that his family recently previously of the weaker sex, while in sented to the Georgia Department of the midst of battle, is among the 43 Archives. Miss Ruth Blair, state historian, obtained the manuscripts with the help of Miss Emmie C. Jones, of Cartersville.

Stuart wrote to General Young, then a colonel, as the latter lay in bed wounded during August of 1863. His letter, which also tells of battle plans, reads:

"Dear Colonel: I am very glad to hear your wound is doing so well, and hope we'll soon have you with us again. I am very anxious that you should be promoted and, in order to effect it, just get another Georgia regiment on here—and I suggest Anderson's cavalry at Savannah. He is anxious to come and you can by persistent application, get it done. "I hope then to have for your brigade Cobb's Georgia Legion, Phillips'

Legion, Jeff Davis' Legion and Anderson's regiment. A tip-top brigade—'est ce pas? Gordon is in command of Hampton's brigade and commands it well. We have the Fleetwood front yet. Get to work to get another regiment of Georgia cavalry here. I want you made brigadier. "I suppose you have heard the rumor of Hood's appointment as lieutenant general of cavalry? It is no heart dart proof when himself, surrendered when, like Achilles, he found the enemy had him by the heel. So beware! Beware! The staff sends regards. Yours, J. E. B. Stuart."

This collection is one of 50 obtained by Miss Blair during the last few years.
